Wallace, the vice-president, was received Saturday by Joe E. Marx, president of the chamber's senior board. In his letter, Mr. Wallace said: "I feel that the Chamber of Commerce deserves the support of all the business and professional interests of Monroe and West Monroe in their efforts to further the interests of the community."

In making public the letter, President Marx said: "It is very gratifying to have such expressions as this from an organization like the Union Oil mill, and it indicates the deep interest being taken by our progressive industries in the purpose of the Chamber of Commerce to make this organization a vital factor in the future prosperity and progress of our Twin Cities. This membership contribution was wholly unsolicited."

President Marx also made public a letter from Otto E. Passman of the Passman Equipment company, enclosing a pledge for a substantial membership contribution to the Chamber of Commerce in its membership campaign.

THE KENTUCKY colonels of the U. S. A., will hold their annual meeting in Louisville, Ky., next week, and it is expected that upwards of a hundred will be present at the feasting and the what-not.

Lest some reader sees wartime significance in this announcement, we hasten to explain that the Kentucky colonels are mainly men of peaceful disposition. They would not fight anybody, except of course at the drop of a hat, and that is grave provocation in any man's country. However, anybody is permitted to wear a hat at the annual meeting of the Kentucky colonels. He might drop it accidentally.

We believe there are some real Kentucky colonels, too, known as colonelesses. But we would not know about their dispositions. We have met but one lady Kentucky colonel. She was beautiful and wonderful, and at the moment of our meeting her countenance was lighted up with a seraphic glow that we thought was divine, and we said as much to her husband.

He said yes, she had just won a little bet on Bold Venture in the Kentucky Derby. He said sometimes her countenance impressed him as so-

'My Trial Is Ended; I Am Not Afraid,' Jackson Whitlow Tells Wife

ABSTINENCE BROKEN AS HE TAKES CUP OF WINE

'Pot Liquor,' Greens And Juicy Steak Also Being Prepared

STOOPING OAK, Tenn., May 1.—(AP)—Emaciated Jackson Whitlow, 45-year-old trapper of Cumberland mountains, ended what he said was a 53-day fast today after "receiving a definite call from the Lord" to eat.

Squirrel broth, which Whitlow said was prescribed by the Lord, was taken by the faster shortly after "the call." Whitlow yesterday swallowed a small quantity of grape juice, the first nourishment he said he had taken since March 10.

He was appreciably stronger today and Dr. R. E. Standifer of Dunlap, who examined him, gave him "a good chance to recover."

Whitlow, who had steadfastly refused to see newsmen all day, told the Associated Press of the "call."

"My mind was on my fast when I heard the Lord say, 'Take thy burden to the Lord and leave it there,'" he whispered in a weak voice.

"How long will this be on me?" I asked him, and the Lord answered, 'I was with you when you were down and I'll be with you when you are up.'

"This indicated to me my fast should be ended, so I asked how I should end it. He told me to drink squirrel soup.

"After I had taken the squirrel soup,

PRESIDENT SIGNS NEUTRALITY BILL

Starts Fishing Under Good Conditions But Seas Generally Choppy

WASHINGTON, May 1.—(AP)—The state department announced that President Roosevelt signed the neutrality bill tonight. It had reached him by plane, automobile and boat at the destroyer Moffett, anchored off Port Arkansas, Tex.

By D. Harold Oliver

GALVESTON, Tex., May 1.—(AP)—President Roosevelt waited in a choppy sea off Port Aransas, Tex., tonight to sign the neutrality bill being rushed to him by automobile and small boat.

The destroyer Moffett bearing the presidential fishing party arrived off Port Aransas, near Corpus Christi, at 1:30 p. m.

A dispatch from the president to headquarters here said he had started fishing under ideal weather conditions. A gulf storm appeared to have missed the party.

"Arrived off Aransas Pass at 1:30 this afternoon and commenced fishing," said the message. "Will spend night inside jetties. Fog lifted. Lively afternoon. Further plans on hour to hour basis."

Rough seas prevented use of two navy planes based here for mail transportation to and from the president's boat.

The two planes dragged anchor and collided in the gulf off Galveston early

Pirogue Classic Again Captured By Adam Billiot

LAFITTE, La., May 1.—(AP)—Eighteen-year-old Adam Billiot paddled to a sensational victory in the year's biggest event of this Cajun county today, capturing the four-mile Pirogue classic on Big Bayou Barataria for the second consecutive year in the new record time of 35 minutes, 9 seconds.

Hundreds of fishermen, trappers and "city folks" lined the banks of the oak-studded, moss overhung bayou once used by the pirate, Jean Lafitte, and cheered him lustily in English and French patois as he splashed along at almost a 7-mile-an-hour clip to break the mark of 48 minutes, 7 3-4 seconds he set last year.

PUBLIC UTILITY PROBE PLANNED

Wade O. Martin Says Commission Will Launch Investigation

SHREVEPORT, La., May 1.—(AP)—Wade O. Martin, chairman of the Louisiana Public Service commission, said today that the commission would launch an investigation into public utilities operating in the state to determine whether there were any discriminatory practices and whether rate schedules were fair. He said the investigation would be undertaken on a state-wide basis within thirty days.

His statement was made after a hearing here today on a complaint filed by Mayor Sam S. Caldwell of Shreveport against the Arkansas-Louisiana Gas company. He said the costs of the investigation would be assessed against the companies investigated and that this action would be taken under one of the laws passed by the legislature and sponsored by the late Senator Huey P. Long.

Mayor Caldwell charged in his complaint that exorbitant rates were being charged in Shreveport for gas and that the company was engaged in discriminatory practices.

"We know," said a statement issued by Mr. Martin, "that gas is being piped out of north Louisiana to Atlanta, Ga., a distance of 600 miles and that it is being sold for both domestic and industrial purposes for less money than in some places in the state of Louisiana.

"We know also that gas companies in the state are paying an average of three cents per 1,000 cubic feet to the small gas producers, where as in most states they pay from 5 to 14 cents per thousand feet.

"These things indicate to us that the people of the state are paying too much for gas and that investigation, at least, is warranted."

NEW ORLEANS, May 1.—(AP)—Five persons were killed last night and today in a general storm that cost several hundred thousand dollars in property and crop damage in coastal Louisiana and Mississippi.

A tornadic arm of the disturbance, which was accompanied by rains measuring up to more than five inches, lightning bolts and excessive precipitation of hail, struck the Phillipston community in Pointe Coupee parish, La., and killed three negro dwellers.

The dead were listed as J. M. Fields, James Taylor and an infant son of Taylor. A half dozen villages were swept by the tornado in Pointe Coupee and Avoyelles parishes, country houses were blown down and trees were uprooted.

Farm crops, tomatoes, truck, and the Louisiana strawberry crop were materially damaged. Dr. J. W. Plauche, of nearby Morganza, La., estimated that between 75 and 100 persons had been made homeless by the tornado in the affected Louisiana rural section and that crop losses in that section, including the big cotton crop at the Louisiana state penitentiary, across the river, had been damaged $150,000. Sewing Project Provides Many Articles Of Apparel

More Than 100 Women Employed; Garments Distributed To Needy

Thousands of garments ranging from baby layettes to overalls, are being made by women employed in the Ouachita parish sewing project, a WPA relief project which has been operating here for about three years.

The project workshop is located on the second floor of the McHenry building, 110 South Grand, street and employs more than 100 women. Mrs. Lucy C. Neely is supervisor, and Mrs. Anna Starsney is in charge of the office. The project is sponsored by the Ouachita parish police jury which recently appropriated funds to pay the rental of the premises occupied by the workshop.

The sewing project, more than any other relief program of the government, has contributed towards assisting women of the parish, and has provided garments for underprivileged children and needy adults. The project supplies garments for the government which in turn distributes them to the various welfare agencies, and at the same time teaches sewing to those who are enrolled in the project.

All those who work in the sewing room here are expert seamstresses and cutters. Many of the women knew this work when they were enrolled. Others, however, were unable to sew and through the medium of instruction classes which form a part of the project, have become efficient in the work. One of the teachers in charge of a sewing class is said to have known nothing whatever about sewing, but after undergoing an "apprenticeship" became an expert seamstress.

A room of the workshop building is used by negro women employed in the sewing project. The caliber of their work was reported as excellent.

The federal government provides thousands of yards of excellent materials which members of the sewing project make up into mens' and women's pajamas, shirts, dresses, overalls, trousers and other articles of clothing. These are turned over to the government commodity warehouse which is located on DeSiard street and is in charge of Carroll Wallace. The welfare agencies requisition for these garments, which are in turn distributed to needy clients in Ouachita parish. All garments made by the sewing project are distributed only among the needy of Ouachita parish.

Every care is taken to safeguard the lives and health of the women employed in this project. All scissors, needles and thimbles used are sterilized. The women are required to practice fire drills regularly and an inspector connected with the safety department of the federal government relief projects makes periodical visits here and gives instruction on safety measures.

A nurse is in attendance at all times and a bed is kept ready for any member of the sewing project who may be taken ill.

The excellence of the work done by members of the project was demonstrated recently when a contest was held among the workers who prepared dresses and other garments which were judged by Mrs. Teresa Rougeau, fifth district supervisor of sewing projects, assisted by Mrs. Jewel McQuiller, home demonstration agent of Ouachita parish. The garments entered in the contest were judged according to design and color, individuality and style, suitability, purpose and occasion, durability, workmanship, accuracy in cutting and finish. They were said to be as good as any that could be purchased in a store, and the entrants were awarded ribbons and honorable mention.

HONOR GRADUATES NAMED AT ARCADIA

ARCADIA, La., May 1.—(Special)—Dorothy Wade, daughter of Dr. J. L. Wade of Arcadia, was declared valedictorian of the senior class of the Arcadia High school by virtue of having the highest scholastic average for the four years of high school work. Miss Wade's average was A for the four years. Mildred Jordon was declared salutatorian, with a slightly lower average than Dorothy Wade.

Not only has the valedictorian made an outstanding record in academic work, but she has been active in extra curricular activities. She has taken part in athletics, singing, cheer leading and other school activities. She is also vice-president of the graduating class. She was recently voted the best all-round girl in a popularity contest held in the school.

She is Dr. Wade's third child to graduate from the Arcadia High school with honors. James, the oldest child, graduated as president of his class in 1934. Inez graduated in 1936. She was secretary of her class and stood third in academic rating for the four years.

Dr. Wade formerly lived in Union parish, moving to Arcadia about ten years ago.

Where The Scientist Fails

The fact that physicists who used to blame teeth, tonsils and intestines for most of the ills that befall mankind are now charging those same ills against the ductless glands, has led one editor to exclaim in bewilderment that the problem of man's physical well-being grows "curiouser and curiouser."

Perhaps you wonder exactly what a physicist is. Specifically, according to Webster, he is one versed in medical science or natural science; a believer that the marvels and mysteries of life can be explained by chemical and physical principles.

The trouble with the physicist is that, being engrossed with an extensive study of the physical, he fails to see and comprehend the spiritual. To him the physical side of life is the big side, and from a study of it he expects to get the answers to questions pertaining to creation, recuperation and re-creation.

Is not the physicist looking in the wrong place for solutions to his puzzlements? In trying to explain life by material investigations he is like a man trying to unlock the secret of electricity by analyzing a dynamo. A dynamo has no power. It merely expresses power. It has no action. It merely transmits action. It wouldn't be worth a hoot in a hurricane without the electrical energy to which it is connected.

Man's physical being has no power of its own. It has no action of its own. The power and the action it manifests it gets from some other source. Let man's body be cut off from that source of life and energy and it not only becomes inert but disintegrated.

No physicist yet has been able to construct an animate human being, nor to explain the life principle by which human beings live and move and have their being. Man's physical body cannot renew itself. It is said to do that, but it does not. The renewing processes are induced by influences other than the body. True enough, cells are developed in the body. Replacement of tissue is continuous, but the body of itself does not produce cells or replace tissues. If it did it would be possible for a human being to live forever.

That physicists are on the wrong track trying to explain everything material by material laws, is indicated by the fact that every so often they completely abandon theories about which they have been cocksure for years and then cocksurely adopt other theories—often revolutionary—which they eventually abandon for still other theories.

Is there any more reason to believe that the physicists of today are any more right in their determinations than were the physicists whose long accepted determinations have been discarded? On the other hand, those thinkers who have insisted that spiritual laws are the controlling laws—the constructing laws—are just as consistent today in their beliefs and declarations as they were thousands of years ago. They have not changed their position, and it is not likely that they will ever change them, for their beliefs seem to be founded on basic truth. Probably not a day passes that the physical body of some human being does not manifest some characteristic which cannot be satisfactorily explained by the theories and diagnoses of physicists.

If the physicists would look beyond the materialities for their answers, if they would regard material things as causes rather than effects, not as powers but as expressions of power, they would indeed have something which would be of infinite benefit to the physical, the mental and the spiritual well-being of mankind.

SOURCES OF CULTURE

To those who, because they are exponents of intellectual and spiritual freedom, have been exiled from Germany there must be a profound satisfaction in words like these of Professor Franz Boas, Columbia's world-famous anthropologist:

"There is not a single culture in the world which we could honestly call autonomous. Every group of people has been ready to assume cultural traits from others. The governing factor has not been racial descent, but social environment."

Hitler's concept of an outstanding culture based on "blood and soil" rests on nothing more tangible than a desire that scorns the lessons of history. The experience of migratory peoples and of peoples in whose lives migratory waves have merged go far to refute Hitler's Nordic theory. The status of the "mental immigrant" in America seems assured so long as "The University in Exile" opens to him its portals and welcomes his contributions on spiritual development and mental research.

To Thomas Mann, generally accounted the greatest living German author, winner of the Nobel prize for literature in 1929, but an exile since the advent of Hitler, the warmth of America's greeting must seem profund. His stay will be short, but before he returns to Switzerland, he will have opportunity in lectures before the Graduate Faculty of Political and Social Science, the proud parent of "The University in Exile," to give inspiration to those who hold freedom of the spirit as the dearest of possessions.

RHYME AND REASON

By ANNE CAMPBELL

THE BOOMERANG OF HATE

If I should strike my unsuspecting child,
Losing my temper, putting all the blame
On his fair head, I am the one defiled,
It is myself I maim!

The rising venom of my pettiness
Bursts into anger, and the cutting, curt
Phrase falls . . . The value of my soul grows less.
It is myself I hurt!

Hate is a boomerang, and if I send
Its arrow flying to your heart, my fate
Is to be lonely. . . . Soon, without a friend,
It is myself I hate!

'SWOLLEN BUREAUCRACY'

By BRUCE CATTON

The federal bureaucracy is a fearful thing, as everybody knows. It is a swollen organization of political appointees, engaged in officious meddling, which consumes the taxpayer's substance and straddles the neck of Uncle Sam like the old man of the sea.

But it does have its uses, now and then. If you are inclined to doubt it, consider the record of the United States food and drug administration during the recent Ohio river floods.

As soon as the waters started rising, inspectors for this branch of the bureaucracy started down the great river valley. They had a thousand-mile beat to cover, from Marietta, O., to Cairo, Ill., and their object was to destroy all fruits, vegetables, medicines, flour, and other foodstuffs that were contaminated by the flood waters.

This was tough on the local storekeepers, manufacturers, and wholesalers. Most of them cooperated without a whimper, though, and those who whimpered had to cooperate anyway. The inspectors were thorough and unyielding.

In one town, 200 carloads of flood-damaged food were hauled off to a stone quarry and destroyed. In another, 120 tons of water-soaked coffee were destroyed. In Louisville, the inspectors went through 95 drugstores and destroyed all commodities that the waters had touched.

And the result of all this was that not one single epidemic occurred while the flood waters were receding. Typhoid, dysentery, and the other maladies that "inevitably" take their toll after a flood disaster were distinguished by their absence. The bureaucracy had got there ahead of them.

It is interesting to measure this activity against the standards of, say, 50 years ago.

At that time no one would have dreamed that it might be a proper function of the federal government to keep flood-polluted foods and medicines away from the people. It would have been argued—if anyone had been visionary enough to raise the point—that these things were best left to local management.

To have urged that Uncle Sam keep a staff of trained men on the payroll to snoop around the shelves of the corner grocery store would have qualified a man for immediate admittance to the booby hatch.

But we can see it differently, now. This food and drug administration paid its way in the Ohio valley flood, if any government organization ever did. It saved a great many lives and prevented a tremendous economic loss through sickness.

And the point is that our "swollen federal Bureaucracy" does have its uses, after all. Ordinarily we overlook the useful work it does and see only the expense. A sudden disaster that brings swift, sure and effective help from Washington helps us to see what it is really good for.

A BOOK REVIEW

'PIPE ALL HANDS!' IS STIRRING SEA YARN

The age-old appeal of the sea and its ships is not merely a matter of the sea's beauty and the ships' grace. It comes chiefly from the fact that all of the old values still hold good for the seafarer.

Getting a ship about the ocean is still a matter of skill, alertness, and courage, just as it was in the days of the Phoenicians. Regardless of the skullduggery of shore folk, the sailor must face the sea's perils on his own. The sea will find out how good a man he is and how good a craft his ship is, and if either one fails no second test will be needed.

H. M. Tomlinson meditates on this matter in "Pipe All Hands!" a slightly bookish sea story which shakes off its bookishness along toward the end and gives you as tense and stirring an account of a storm at sea as you would care to read.

He deals with a British tramp freighter—one of those inexplicable Jonah ships which, for no reason at all, can usually be depended on to do the wrong thing in an emergency—and with the men who have the job of taking her about the earth. To them, she is a personality, to be cursed and served and loved; to the owner, she is merely a number, a package in which goods are delivered.

How this attutude of the owners lands the ship in an Atlantic hurricane, and nearly causes the loss of all on board, brings the story to a climax that will have you pop-eyed. And although Mr. Tomlinson's stokers and deckhands have an odd way of talking just like Mr. Tomlinson, he can tell a sea story with the best of them—and, in the telling, can expose a humane, thoughtful, and civilized view of life.

1937 CONVERTIBLE

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McINTYRE

The most interesting murder from a reading standpoint, to my notion, next to the Harry Thaw killing of Stanford White, was the pistoling of the gambler Herman Rosenthal in front of the sporty Metropole hotel in the heart of Times Square one summer night as the theaters were emptying. A summer night in 1912.

The murder ripped open the Tenderloin and exposed its machinations. It involved the notorious Police Lieutenant Charles Becker as a gambling house grafter, implicated him as the instiagtor of the murder of Rosenthal who had squealed and sent him to the chair.

It also flushed out such underworld names as Bald Jack Rose, Harry Vallon, Bridgie Weber, Big Jack Zelig and the actual hired killers, a group of East Side toughs, called: Lefty Louie, Gyp the Blood, Whitey Lewis and Dago Frank. All boys under 26.

They rode in the murder car that Becker supplied, waited across the street for the finger man to identify Rosenthal when he came out and let him have it. Each got $250, plus the electric chair. They thought Becker all-powerful, and he had been; but Charles S. Whitman was a prosecuting attorney with ambitions, and his work in landing Becker behind bars sent him to the governor's chair.

But more interesting still to those who followed the famous case was news recently by a reporter for The New Yorker who discovered Bald Jack Rose and Harry Vallon. Rose was Becker's collector, an entirely hairless gambler who was reputedly the shrewdest poker player in town.

When he saw he could no longer bluff in the Becker expose, he came clean and told all. Thus saving his skin and that of Vallon, his side-kick and assistant.

Rose today is a highly successful proprietor of a chain of roadside restaurants between Milford, Ct. and Lynbrook, L. I. Vallon is his assistant in these enterprises, too. His restaurants are well run and specialize in chicken and waffles. Rose has become a quiet, home-loving man. He does not like to talk about his past. And one cannot blame him for that.

Madison Square Garden regulars declare women have become far more blood-thirsty about ring battles than the males. There are at least 100 who shriek for claret, mayhem and murder when a couple of sluggers are swinging toe to toe. And they are not hard boiled looking either. But rather many debutantes and soft-looking chits so often seen in quiet tea rooms. Their conversation is interesting. At the first they usually close their eyes after first few blows and see no more. The next visit or so they are a bit more curious, and in a short time are standing up and yelling for more action.

To keep awake after going to sleep time I advise mystery story readers to buy "The Falcon Cuts In," by Drekel Drake (Appleton-Century). An awkward way of saluting a rather exciting story.

Then there was unusually placid Richard Watts, Jr., who, just before taking part in a big broadcast jittered to a friend: "This is a hook-to-hook coast-up."

The young Clyde Beatty, branching out from the Ringling circus as an animal trainer at a salary of $150 a week, last year made $60,000 with his own circus and expects this year to top $70,000. It is axiomatic that few circus performers ever grow wealthy unless they get a slice of the business, and very few do.

The most democratic of the millionaires is likely Bob Hague, the Standard Oil tanker tycoon and husband of the gloriously voiced Mary Lewis of the opera via the Follies. Also he is Little Father to the Lambs and reputedly carried that club through the depression. He not only supervises the building of his oil boats, but personally picks every captain, mate and deck hand on the fleet. To each of them he is Bob, and he can speak their language as well as murmur politely over a tea cup in a Park avenue drawing room. A hard worker; he is also fond of relaxing at times in the night clubs.

It is good to hear Jack Norworth's voice again—even if over the air. The years have not done what they usually do to singers in his case. He still has youth in his notes and not many in the modern whirl can put over a song more expertly. Nor pronounce words so distinctly. When he was teamed up with Nora Bayes, they were unbeatable.

And there's George Olsen's band, which has not been heard in New York for quite a spell. It always struck me as one of the better bands. Certainly better than 80 per cent heard over the radio these days.

The pick of the Easter Parade fashionists this season, according to the press reports and rotogravures, swung from Fifth over to Park avenue. Stylists say the most artistic dress displays were on the heigh-ho street two blocks east from Fifth. One editorial writer attributes the new puff of fashion interest in Park avenue to the Irving Berlin tune, "Slumming on Park avenue." That's about as silly a reason as any.

STAMP NEWS

By I. S. Klein

IN his youth, Herman Boerhaave, native of Voorhout, near Leyden, Holland, studied to become a clergyman. He was born in 1668, and by the time he was 22 he was a doctor of philosophy, well versed in ancient languages, ecclesiastical history, and mathematics.

But in 1690, the young theological scholar veered toward the study of medicine, and, mainly through self-education, soon became one of the leading physicians in Europe. He introduced many innovations in the practice of medicine and was so highly respected that royalty traveled to Leyden, to consult him about their troubles. Peter the Great of Russia, visited him, it is said, and even a mandarin in China wrote for his advice. When Boerhaave died in 1733, at the age of 70, he left a fortune of 2,000,000 florins.

In 1928, the Netherlands issued a set of four stamps requiring surtaxes for the benefit of child welfare societies. One of these bears a sketch of Boerhaave.

YOUR HEALTH

BY DR. MORRIS FISHBEIN

(Editor Journal of the American Medical Association, and of Hygeia, the Health Magazine)

In the years that have passed since Francis Trudeau first introduced sanatorium care for the tuberculous in this country, great progress has been made in the treatment of this disease.

In the old days, one of the first measures to be considered in the cure was a change of climate. We are convinced nowadays that it is quite possible to find a suitable climate anywhere in the world and that the only advantage in traveling to hunt a cure is the benefit that comes from a change of surroundings.

In general, it is well established that open air is helpful to the tuberculous and that it is most effective when the temperature of the air is cool and bracing.

This method of treatment may be begun promptly and developed into a habit. The patient could remain out of doors during the daytime and, in many cases, sleep out of doors as well, although outdoor sleeping is not essential if screened porches or open windows provide plenty of air.

In general, cold air seems to be helpful but, if the circulation of the blood is not good and the reaction to cold air is insufficient, exposure to cold air need not be a routine.

In any type of outdoor life, exposure to dust, wind, rain and fog is undesirable. Heat or cold in great excess is dangerous to health. Warm, moist climates are believed to have a depressing effect, and cool, dry climates a stimulating one.

People who are severely ill in the early or late stages of tuberculosis need not seek a change in climate. In such cases complete rest in bed, either at home or at a nearby sanatorium, should be the first step in treatment.

Climate generally is now secondary in the treatment of pulmonary tuberculosis, and removal of the patient is not important if he can get proper rest, suitable food, and contentment of mind to better advantage at home.

The question of personal contentment and satisfaction is important. If a patient is constantly unhappy and homesick, he will not do so well in a sanatorium as he will at home. A sanatorium, however, is valuable in regulating and establishing for the patient a suitable routine of treatment that might be difficult to arrange at his home.

BEHIND THE SCENES IN WASHINGTON

By Rodney Dutcher

WASHINGTON. — The $174,000,000 Aluminum Company of America, sued for dissolution in an anti-trust suit by the department of justice, is "at a loss to understand" why it is being prosecuted.

All, however, eventually will be made clear. Perhaps no one will ever quite explain why Roosevelt waited four years before having his attorney general take some such action against the "aluminum trust." But here is a bit of confidential tipoff for the Mellons and their associates:

1—The suit is a vital test case for the anti-trust laws. The government isn't certain that the supreme court hasn't so devitalized those laws as to make them ineffective. But it believes that if there is any business group which can be successfully prosecuted under the monopoly laws, it is the aluminum company's organization.

2—The administration, as previously reported in these dispatches, is worried about price inflation. It thinks the threat of a crash resulting from price inflation comes chiefly from industries in which prices are controlled. It says that after aluminum company profits increased from $8,571,000 in 1935 to $20,866,000 in 1936, and looked certain to increase in 1937, the corporation still went ahead and raised prices a few weeks ago.

3—Most important of all, for the first time since anyone can remember, the assistant attorney general in charge of the department's anti-trust law division is a man who means business. Assistant Attorney General Robert H. Jackson will be no stranger to the owners of Aluminum company. He prosecuted the Mellon tax case.

Politicians of both parties have howled about monopoly for decades. This isn't the first time something has been done about it, but for present-day purposes, it's much the most important.

Anti-Trust Unit Shaken Up

In time past, during that long period when Andrew W. Mellon was secretary of the treasury, the Aluminum company received various consents for its practices from the department of justice. And there were no prosecutions. Surprising as it may seem, a certain amount of shaking up and cleaning up of personnel in the anti-trust division has been considered necessary since the new assistant attorney general took charge.

There was an embarrassing moment more than 10 years ago when Attorney General Harlan Fiske Stone, a newcomer here, decided the Aluminum company should be prosecuted. Andrew Mellon showed enthusiasm over Stone's availability for the supreme court and President Coolidge appointed Stone to a seat on that bench, where he still functions vigorously. After attempting to appoint a lawyer whose connection with another trust led to public outcry, Coolidge named to succeed Stone an old friend from Vermont. He developed the sit-down technique in official position to a new high point and regaled newspaper correspondents with fishing stories.

Senator Tom Walsh was named attorney general by Roosevelt. He promised one of his first acts would be to bring suit against the aluminum trust. But he died before he had the chance. Attorney General Homer S. Cummings never got around to it until just the other day. But Cummings has always been politically-minded and completely loyal to the White House, so it is fair to assume that the president never pushed him on it very hard. It is also fair to assume that one big reason the Aluminum company hasn't heard from the department of justice before is that Roosevelt favored instead the NRA idea and its provisions for suspension of anti-trust laws. And it does take a lot of time to prepare an anti-trust case.

See It As Monopoly Now

But now Cummings and Jackson take the position that there is a law against monopoly on the federal statutes which has been there for many years, that the aluminum business is a perfect and complete monopoly and that it has been built up by illegal steps. The Sherman act penalizes any person or combination of persons monopolizing or attempting to monopolize "any part of the trade or commerce among the several states or with foreign nations."

The government charges that the corporation is the sole producer of pig aluminum in the United States and that its recent advance in the price of virgin ingot was an "act of oppressive and unreasonable price fixing" and in restraint of trade.

The petition says the company has protected itself from foreign competition through a series of devices, including purchases and competition in foreign countries, which enable it to make agreements with foreign producers to restrict production and allocate markets.

The Aluminum company, commenting on the suit, has complained that it has been "the most investigated company in America."

NOTED JACKSON CHARACTER DIES

'Newsboy' Who Knew High And Low Succumbs To Sudden Illness

JACKSON, Miss., May 1.—(AP)—Wiley Cooper, probably Jackson's best-known character, is dead.

Wiley was only a "newsboy," but he knew the high and the low of Jackson.

For 30 years, Wiley has been peddling daily papers in Jackson, boosting the baseball team, and pattin' folks on the back, whether he knew them or not.

The story is told that he once strayed off to Memphis for a visit. A policeman thought he was "a little cracked" and locked him up.

Wiley told them he owned Jackson, Miss., and that if they didn't believe it to wire Mayor Walter Scott.

The police department obliged as a joke.

To the amazement of the officers, shortly a wire came back from the mayor:

"Yes, he owns Jackson; just put him on the train with a tag addressed to me."

Wiley's face was his ticket to any picture show or sporting event in Jackson. He rarely ever missed an athletic contest.

Wiley was stricken while at a picture show late yesterday. He died early today. He was 41.

CROSSETT STUDENTS OBSERVE MAY DAY

The festival, presented by the department of physical education, was directed by Mrs. Paul B. Kays, physical education instructor, Miss Ruth Martin, Miss Helen Sparks, Miss Mary Elizabeth Deloache, Miss Joe Salyers, Miss Imogene Hines, R. E. Bell and D. C. Hastings.

NEW LONDON BOARD CLOSES SCHOOLS

HENDERSON, Tex., May 1.—(AP)—President E. W. Reagan of the New London school board announced today the schools of his district had suspended temporarily "pending adjustments of scholastic requirements with reference to credits and the adjustment of some other matters."

He said the schools suspended yesterday, "this action being taken in the interest of the school and children."

Informed, but unquotable, sources have said the board received a petition bearing nearly 200 names last Tuesday seeking removal of W. C. Shaw, superintendent of the school blown to bits with hundreds of its teachers and student's six weeks ago.

No formal action had been taken today.

Sources said the New London residents were divided on the removal of Shaw.

Spark Plug Change Week is Champion's annual reminder to millions of motorists that Spring is engine tune-up time. Champion dealers in your neighborhood are at your service to show you why all spark plugs, including even Champions, should be retired from active service after 10,000 miles. The habit of changing spark plugs during Change Week has grown enormously simply because new Champions have proved in service that they re-vitalize engine performance and actually save their cost in renewed gasoline economy. See your Champion Spark Plug dealer this week. Have him check and clean your spark plugs, and replace with new Champions, if necessary. You can depend on Champion Spark Plugs.

PLAN MEMORIAL AT LONDON, TEX.

Scholarship Move Will Commemorate Lives Of Blast Victims

LONDON, Tex., May 1.—(Special)—Bereaved parents, still stunned by the tragedy which took the lives of more than 300 students and teachers in the London school, met this week to plan a fitting memorial to their loved ones. From this meeting of the leaders of the community grew a plan to create a student loan and scholarship fund as a living memorial to those who lost their lives in the disaster. Citizens the world over are asked to contribute to this worthy cause.

The memorial is to be an educational foundation—nation-wide in benefit—and under the supervision of a national advisory council. Funds of the foundation will be used to educate needy and ambitious students who would otherwise be deprived of a college education.

Surviving students of a typing class in the school, which was destroyed, were this week typing letters to go out to school superintendents of Texas asking that they sponsor contributions in every school in the state.

Governor James V. Allred and Congressman Morgan G. Sanders were the first to wire their acceptance of places on the national advisory council. The Texas governor wired other governors in the United States asking them to declare the month of May a memorial month for New London and to make and send their contributions to Sam Warren, treasurer of the New London Memorial association, Overton, Tex.

Leaders signing the charter for the educational memorial are M. H. Marwil, mayor of Henderson, Tex., president; John Lumpkins, London, vice-president; Mrs. Fay Beidleman, London, secretary; Sam Warren, Overton, treasurer; Mrs. Claude Jacobs, Mrs. Polk Childress, Mrs. H. R. Whittington, W. C. Shaw, and Claudia Jacobs, all of London.

Headquarters for the memorial have been established in Henderson, Tex., Rusk county seat, in the high school building.

Superintendent W. C. Shaw of the London school requested Dr. L. A. Woods, state superintendent of public instruction in Texas, to write other state superintendents throughout the United States asking that they cooperate in this project, which is a living memorial to those who died in the world's worst school disaster.

CHAPTER XIX

There was the cabin at Wading Hollow, of course. Let it not be thought for an instant that the young Weavers had forgotten that. But while it was ideal for week-ends, perfect for a brief vacation, it was not to be thought of as a regular living place. For one thing, it was much too far from the city—70 miles on the railroad. The commuting would be both difficult and expensive and on those nights when Tom was kept late, Gypsy would be quite alone in an inaccessible and lonely place. It was a delightful place to camp, however, and on several spring Saturdays a small car might be seen ploughing through the sandy road, spilling bundles as it went.

Sue Canavan and Hunt Gibson came down one bright, blowy Sunday in May and Sue raved over the place—the smell of the sea and the snug little cabin with its bunks and its oil stove and its blue curtains. They had a merry supper out of doors, Tom broiling steaks over the coals and Gypsy ladling out potato salad.

"If I owned the place," Sue said reflectively, lying luxuriously on an army blanket. "I'd never leave it. I'd dig myself in and live on roots and berries." Sue was red-haired, blue-eyed, enthusiastic. She was some lucky man's good secretary, down in the city.

"You would not!" Hunt roused himself lazily to contradict her. "You're a Fifth avenue hound and you know it. You like this in small doses but, deep down, you want to live a stone's throw from Times Square."

"There's something in that." Sue admitted. "But honestly, Gyps, I'm mad about this place. Why didn't we ever come before?"

"Well, Resina was here most of last summer," Gypsy told her. "It's Tom's property, really, but the family love it so they sort of have it on shares. The children adore it."

Tom caught her eye and she smiled at him, thinking of the child who might—who most certainly would—be with them here the following summer. Darling Tommy, how handsome he was with the sunburn blotting out his winter pallor and his long legs stretched out on the sand! What a pity they couldn't stay here all summer long, forget the job and the apartment and everything else. Well, there was no use wishing for the moon. You just had to enjoy things as they came.

Tom, on the other side of the fire, felt his heart swell with love for the small, gallant girl in the deck chair. Gypsy's color was enchanting today—she was all apricot and brown tones—and the sea air had made her hair one mass of feathery ringlets.

"We could stay down tonight, perhaps," she was saying to Sue. "Tom could go up in the morning."

He hated to dash her dream but he said slowly, "Honestly I wish we could, darling, but I've got to be in so darned early—"

Gypsy said briskly, cheerfully, "It doesn't matter in the least."

But he raged within because he had to disappoint her.

The apartment seemed especially small and cramped that night when they got back to it, warm, weary and sunburned. However Gypsy said loyally, "We haven't got a tiled bath down at the Hollow, anyway." She was seeing the advantages of the apartment, admitting that the cabin with its windows open to the wide sea had some drawbacks, as long as they couldn't stay there.

But in the days that followed, when the heat of early June descended upon the city, making pavements and walls and unshaded windows one white glare of sunshine, she thought many and many a time with almost unbearable longing of the peace and coolness of Wading Hollow and the little cabin set among the dunes. Gypsy's mother telephoned, asking her to come out to Blue Hills, and they went one bright week-end, but Beatrice had moved into Gypsy's old room now. The house had settled down to a routine which did not include her and, while she knew she was always more than welcome, she could not accept her mother's generous suggestion that she and Tom spend the summer there.

"You'll wilt away in town," Mrs. Morrell said in melancholy tones. "I don't know what Tom Weaver's thinking of . . ."

Gypsy interrupted gaily. "Mummy, don't be silly! You know the apartment is comfortable as can be. We have awnings, we have refrigeration and electric fans and the river nearby. You talk as though I were in the Majove desert."

This was all very well but when heat settled down like a blanket her resolution was shaken. Tom found her one night, lying on the daybed, white and exhausted.

"It's nothing," she told him. Not for worlds would she admit the weakness and nervousness that had swept her that day like a tide. The city had, all at once, semed a giant octopus with fiery fingers reaching out to destroy her.

"It's just nerves," she told herself desperately, fanning her hot cheeks. "Tomorrow we'll get a breeze and I'll forget about it." But she was growing heavy and slow of movement now. Her hour was drawing near. It became increasingly difficult to ignore her bodily needs and woes.

Tom drew the green chair beside her and sat down, staring at her worried eyes. "It's this dam' place," he said in a beaten voice. "You must get away."

She essayed a weary smile. The mountains? The lake country? Out of the question. If she could get someone to stay with her at the Hollow. But she didn't want to leave Tom. He would be alone in this hot, staring city.

"Everything's out of proportion just now," she faltered, laying one thin hand on his. "You're tired out and I'm fidgety and we're not seeing things as they really are. Don't worry. It will be all right."

But he was not convinced. He made her lie there. He brought her supper on a tray. Cold meat and string beans (she had prepared these earlier) and iced tea and fruit.

Gypsy ate and drank with him. The curls lay damp on her hot forehead. Her dotted swiss frock, many times washed and now guiltless of crispness, fell in limp folds around her. Her eyes were ringed. Sleepless nights were beginning to make their mark upon her. And yet she had, reclining there, the strangely appealing beauty that comes to some women facing the great adventure of motherhood. Tom thought he had never seen her so lovely. Her face was thinner. The purity and integrity of her features was finely etched. Her eyes were large, weary, brooding.

Heartened by the food and by the errant and fitful breeze now stirring the curtains, she said to him: "Some day we'll laugh at all this. We'll be in our big garden, strolling under our own trees, and wonder why we made such a fuss about one little summer. We'll have Tommy Junior and Suzy Belle with us and we'll tell them about the terrible siege in the East Fifties that hot summer."

But she could not win a smile to Tom's lips. He was deadly serious. He was infinitely depressed.

"By this time I'd hoped to have a real place for you—a home," he said, throwing one disparaging glance at the four walls. "This is the time that counts really. You ought to have everything—baths and servants and comfort."

Gypsy was the stronger now. She chaffed him gently. This was a bad time, she admitted, but they'd get through it. It didn't really matter. And indeed she felt at that moment she could face anything with Tom by her side.

But the following day, waking to brassy skies, the thought of coolness, of trees blowing, of windows opening onto green vistas, possessed her like a madness. The brick walls of the courtyard seemed to press in on her. The nights were fiery furnaces to try men's souls.

Tom knew this—sensed the tension and the turbulence in her. Day after burning day he left her, to find her white, gallant, smiling at night. They walked sometimes in the park, trying to find solace in the splashing fountains. But there was no real release anywhere.

One particularly hot afternoon Gypsy was aroused from a fitful doze by the ringing of the telephone. Tom's voice, joyous, renewed, came to her.

"Darling, what do you think? Pack up your duds—we're moving out to the Island."

"Not to the Hollow?" Had he gone suddenly mad? He knew he could never commute from there.

"No." He sounded exultant. "I've made a deal with Mac. He's letting me have his place at Port Washington because he wants to be in town."

Mac was McKinnon, one of the men in Tom's office. His wife, Tom explained, had gone out to her people in St. Paul for the summer, taking the children. Mac was tired of commuting. He fairly leaped at the idea of the Weavers' trim little apartment. Gypsy had seen his house once and had fallen in love with it. It was a tiny, blue-roofed cottage on a high hill with a sweep of bay just below it. Apple trees dotted the half acre beyond.

Well, it was too good to be true, but there it was!

Tom burst in upon her half an hour later, charged with electric energy. He found her languidly packing and took the bags, the bottles and brushes out of her lax hands.

"Go and lie down, woman," he commanded her. "I'm doing all this. We're moving to the country."

She didn't mean to, but all of a sudden tears came. Cooling, blinding, healing tears of gladness and relief.

There will be a total of 90 soloists in the various bands which will represent many of the cities and towns of the state. There will be a delegation of 300 from Baton Rouge; 400 from New Orleans and large numbers from other cities and towns.

The public will be welcomed at both the Ouachita Parish High school auditorium and at the Neville High school auditorium while the various contests are in progress.

An admission fee of 25 cents will admit to all the events on either day, the sum being made specially low so that a large number can attend.

Vocational Training Plan Making Progress At L. T. I.

Boys Learning Various Trades Under Instructions Of Expert

"Every boy should be taught how to make a living and how to live. This training will prepare him for responsibilities of the home and burden of government. On his shoulders tomorrow responsibilities of life will surely fall." This expression epitomizes the philosophy of Dr. Harvey Dillon, superintendent of the Louisiana Training institute.

To carry into effect this idea a practical vocational training system was initiated last November. It is still in its infancy but the start has been made and it will be expanded from time to time as the work grows and as the boys are more and more able to carry on this work.

In order to put the plan into effect, W. M. Berryhill, a trained and experienced instructor was obtained. The man sought was found at Pollock. Mr. Berryhill is a graduate of Mississippi State college where he obtained his bachelor's degree. He then taught for six years vocational training in the Pollock high school and also found time to take a course at Louisiana State university, where he will shortly receive his master's degree. He was regarded as a man who had combined theory with practice in an unusual degree in which he had met with more than ordinary success.

On November 1, 1936, he came to the Louisiana Training institute and began his duties as vocational teacher. He found out of the 176 boys enrolled, approximately 30 who were old enough and who possessed sufficient initiative and talent to learn something that should fit each of them for a lifework.

The woodworking shop was equipped with approximately $800 worth of material and instruments to make the start. The boys were taught how to build chairs, window frames, book racks and similar work. They have become proficient in constructing articles of household furniture that will rank quite favorably with work turned out by professionals. They are shown how to fashion from red gum the framework of chairs, how to tan hides, how to upholster and to finish off their products until the work room presents a highly interesting and busy place.

A report for the Morning World was shown through the shop and the various processes were explained by Mr. Berryhill, who is a master hand in his line and in the handling of boys.

Many of the chairs, tables, and other material are used in the buildings of the institute. For only a comparatively few cents, the boys have turned out products that would cost in the open market many dollars in cash.

As yet no effort has been made to place the products on the market but this may come later on.

"A lad who has the talent and training can equip a shop in woodworking for furniture building and repair for as little as $300, Mr. Berryhill said. And there is almost no town too small to support such a project. The boy, when he leaves the institute, can with limited capital set himself up in a line of business that is, not overcrowded," Mr. Berryhill said.

But the furniture shop is not the only one that is now maintained. There is an electric shop where the boy with talent in that direction can learn how to repair electric fans, work on generators and master the process of electric welding.

The blacksmith shop and forges are another outlet for youthful energy and boys with that sort of ability are put to work at something that has an appeal for them.

Other boys professing a liking for masonry have been given bricks and shown how to build walls. To be sure, the walls have been torn down and reconstructed many times over, the same 1,000 bricks being used in securing needed experience, but the boys are learning to do things.

A hot bed in the vocational program was required and a space 76 feet by six feet was staked out. The boys have constructed a well-laid brick wall on each side and this will stand permanently for use with the hot bed.

There are two periods for vocational work daily. The first is from 6:30 a.m. to 11:30 a.m., and the second class is held from 1 p.m. to 5 p.m. There are different groups at each period.

All this work is under the general supervision of Principal John Jones who takes as much pride as does Mr. Berryhill in the progress made.

"We have not done much yet, but we have got a start," Mr. Berryhill explained. "It seems to us a step in the right direction and should lead to permanent life work. Certainly it is better to have the boys learning how to make a living than to have them out robbing filling stations." And if one but looks in the intelligent eyes and notes the earnest expression that the boys engaged in vocational work possess, he can but agree with Mr. Berryhill that a start and a good one has been made and that it promises to get somewhere with substantial results.

In Japan, a fan is presented to each youth on the attainment of his majority.

INDUSTRIAL AND BUSINESS REVIEW OF THE TWIN CITIES NORTH LOUISIANA'S COMMERCIAL CENTER

NEW SERVICE AT MILNER-FULLER

Lubritorium, Latest Lubrication Equipment, Installed By Ford Dealer

Milner-Fuller, Inc., local Ford dealers, have installed a lubritorium where owners of all makes of cars and trucks can avail themselves of this modern lubrication service at no extra cost.

No expense has been spared to properly equip this lubritorium with the best and most modern lubrication equipment by "Alemite" and extra powerful hydraulic lifts by "Globe."

"The expense of installing this lubritorium," said Mr. Milner, "would be of no added value to our service without the proper personnel to operate it, as is expected - the alert auto owner of today, so - e have transferred one of our best, oldest and highest priced mechanics from our service department, and he is the type of man who lubricates your car at our place now."

In this modern lubritorium, cars can be lubricated better and in less time and at no increase in price. Time is saved by various automatic Alemite equipment, such as a telescope crank case, drains, high pressure Alemite guns, operating hydraulic hoists, etc. This automatic crank case equipment automatically turns old oil direct from car to underground tank. Various greases are all dispensed from original barrels of high grade greases by automatic pumps operated by air and some operate under pressure up to 4,000 pounds. This pressure will open up any corroded or neglected grease fittings on any car and insures absolute lubrication to all joints and bearings.

The two original hydraulic lifts have been transferred to our wash rack and naturally improves the service in washing as well as greasing.

All cars cleaned on our wash rack are lifted into the air, which enables us to thoroughly clean the car underneath fenders, etc., as well as the body.

An old English rhyme is the source of the prevalent superstition as the proper days on which a person should cut his nails.

Here is the latest in lubrication service and Milner-Fuller's expert, Joe Harper, who is in charge of the Lubritorium.

STUDEBAKER HAS MANY FEATURES

Hill Holder, Overdrive, Fram Oil Cleaner Among Leading Advantages

The Studebakers on exhibit at the automobile show and at the local show rooms of the Central Auto company, 310 North Third street, live up to the veteran corporation's reputation for pioneering and equipping their cars with exclusive features. These new automobiles are equipped with some two score features said to be found on few, if any, other automobiles.

Probably the most interesting feature of the Studebaker line is the automatic hill holder with which all models are equipped. This device permits you to stop and start on upgrades without the discomfiture of "sliding back" or killing your engine. To stop you depress both clutch and brake pedals. To start on up the hill again, you release the brake pedal, keeping your foot on the clutch until your right foot has reached the accelerator and applied pressure. Your car is automatically locked during the interval, a great convenience for even the most experienced driver and especially convenient for women.

Another interesting and exclusive Studebaker feature is the new automatic overdrive with which all President models are equipped. This new overdrive may be cut in or out at will at any speeds over 35 miles per hour. The overdrive decreases the engine speed about one-third while the car's speed remains the same, thus effecting a great economy in fuel and motor wear. To throw in the overdrive, the accelerator is released and, after a moment, applied gradually. The overdrive goes in automatically. To get out of overdrive the driver raises his accelerator foot, holds it for a moment, then applies it quickly. It's all as simple as that.

The automatic voltage regulator on the 1937 Studebaker is another interesting device. At all times, no matter the car's speed nor the engine's speed, the battery is charged at just the exact amount needed. If the battery is full, the charge is eliminated. If it is almost full the charging rate is regulated so that the battery will soon be stocked with the correct amount of "juice." If the battery is low, the regulator puts the generator to work with full energy. It is all done automatically.

For 1937 all Studebakers—Dictators as well as Presidents—have as standard equipment Fram oil and motor cleaners and motorists will be advised that oil need never be changed (except for the summer and winter seasonal changes) if a new Fram cartridge is installed whenever the dip-stick shows that the oil has become dirty. Plain instructions for judging when the oil is too dirty for further use are given on the flat edge of the dip-stick. The Fram cleaner forces the oil through tightly compressed cotton waste—30 times the thickness of straining material used in most conventional types of filters.

Other new and unusual features of these automobiles include automatic lights in the capacious luggage compartments, airplane-type shock absorbers that are built into the chassis and not added as afterthoughts, cowl screens, one-piece seamless hoods that raise from the front, dual range steering, new type of ventilating system and many other devices that make motoring more enjoyable.

1937 MODEL ROOM COOLERS ON SALE

S. O. S. Displays New Delco-Frigidaire Cooling Units At Showrooms Here

The new 1937 model room cooling units, designed to meet the average home-owner's needs and pocket are now on display at the Standard Office Supply company, Inc., 125 St. John street, Monroe's Delco-Frigidaire air-conditioning dealer.

The individual air conditioners are said to operate in such a manner as to wring the sticky moisture out of the air leaving it at just the proper humidity, and lowering the temperature so as to reduce the heat of the room and regulate it to a comfortable degree of coolness.

"It is no longer necessary to suffer the intense heat of the summer months when the home is equipped with a Delco-Frigidaire air cooler," declared H. K. Kilpatrick, president of the Standard Office Supply company. "The individual cooling units are moderately priced and bring to the individual home the same degree of service and comfort which are provided by the large industrial cooling units."

Each Delco-Frigidaire cooler has a dial which can be operated to assure the temperature desired and the cooler automatically maintains that temperature throughout the room.

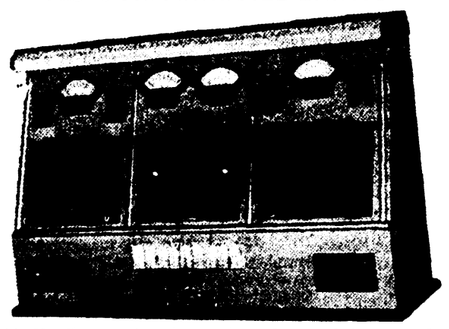
"The installation of a cooling unit in a business office is really a good investment for the business man," Mr. Kilpatrick pointed out. "Working in comfortable surroundings results in greater efficiency and lessens the possibility of irritability and the making of snap judgments. When the day's work is done the business man does not feel fagged out and his vitality is higher. This is readily understood, for with a Delco-Frigidaire cooling unit installed in his office, he can be certain of perpetual 'spring' weather all during the summer."

The new individual air conditioners are especially recommended for home installation as they are said to be a "lifesaver" to the busy housewife who can perform her tasks without experiencing the devitalizing effects of excessive heat. The units also assure great sleeping comfort as they effectively regulate the inside atmosphere in the home and counteract the heat which accumulates in a house as a result of the direct rays of the sun throughout the day.

Delco-Frigidaire individual air cooling units are manufactured in various sizes. The small unit, which cools one room at a time, is priced at $295. These units, manufactured by the General Motors corporation, may be financed through the G. M. A. C. for as long as 24 months.

The Standard Office Supply company invites an inspection of the Delco-Frigidaire air cooling units on display at its showrooms on St. John street, where a representative will be glad to discuss air-conditioning requirements and furnish estimates of costs and installation with no obligation.

TESTS AUTOMOBILE LIGHTS



The Guide Headlamp tester, shown above, is one of the many devices employed by United Electric Service, Inc., 306 North Third street, in its automotive repair department. The Guide Headlamp tester enables expert mechanics to correctly adjust automobile headlights and thus assures safer driving conditions at night. The tester has been approved by state and municipal authorities and a large percentage of car factories are now using it to correctly adjust lamps on new cars.

today. Although one was quickly replaced White House headquarters here decided to send the neutrality measure and other mail flown from Washington by automobile the 200 miles to Port Aransas. A small boat from the Moffett waited to take it to the vacationing chief executive.

The neutrality bill, representing radical changes in American policy in that it gives the president discretionary power to restrict trade with warring nations, had to be signed by midnight if the present temporary law was not to lapse.

Presidential Secretary Marvin H. McIntyre, with a small staff, transferred White House headquarters to the Galvez hotel here after an overnight train run from New Orleans, where the president embarked on the Moffett Thursday.

Communication between the ship and shore was maintained by radio and telephone through the destroyer Schenck off Galveston and a local coast guard station.

It was reported tarpon were running along a wide stretch of Texas coast.

thing less than seraphic, suh, but he hoped we would not think he was being uncomplimentary to his wife. She had her off days just like anybody else, suh!

THE KENTUCKY colonels gather in Louisville, not to sound any martial calls, but to see the Kentucky Derby, and to make a little of that good old Kentucky Bourbon wish it had remained in the barrel. What a well-grounded Kentucky colonel can do to a few vats of Kentucky Bourbon during the annual meeting is something worth putting in your memoirs.

They almost had a scandal at the meeting of the colonels last year. A fellow claiming to be a Kentucky colonel, and accepted as a Kentucky colonel, fell under the table after drinking just a couple of jeroboams of Bourbon.

Still thinking him a real Kentucky colonel, the other colonels hushed up the man's inadequacy as best they could, and put him outside the hall under a rain spout to cool off. But, their suspicions were aroused, and an investigation was held.

To the great relief of all Kentucky colonels, it was learned that the fellow was not a Kentucky colonel at all, but a mere West Virginia corporal. We understand that no one will be admitted to the annual meeting this year unless they present their official commissions as Kentucky colonels.

NO ONE CONTENDS that an attendance of a thousand would constitute a legal quorum of all the Kentucky colonels in this country, but it is enough to hold a banquet, anyway. The exact number of Kentucky colonels is not known to this affiant. We are told that it is quite large.

The Kentucky colonels are of two kinds—those who are commissioned colonels by Kentucky governors, and who include many American citizens living outside the state, and those Kentuckians who are automatically colonels under the architectural laws of the state of Kentucky.

This law was once explained to us by Colonel Pat Knebelkamp and Colonel Phil Chinn, who are well known Kentucky horsemen, and automatic architectural Kentucky colonels. They told us that any man in Kentucky who has two chimneys on his house is a colonel, without any more ado about the matter.

BUT, MOST of the Kentucky colonels you will see at the meeting in Louisville were appointed by various governors of Kentucky down through the years. They are technically colonels on the governor's staff, and the appointments were intended only as Kentucky's accolade to worldly achievement and distinction, or sometimes just as a nice little gesture to a friend of Kentucky.

We see nothing any more incongruous in these appointments than in the naming by the government to military title of men who have had no actual military experience whatever, just as a compliment, or sometimes as a matter of convenience.

However, it seems that some of the governors of Kentucky got to overdoing the Kentucky colonel business. The colonels became so numerous that strangers to Kentucky took to hitching their horses to them. The current governor of Kentucky, the redoubtable "Happy" Chandler, has cut down on the colonels to some extent.

He has not appointed a new colonel since taking office, which the Republicans in Kentucky claim is rank indiscrimination. They point out that all Democrats in Kentucky are colonels, but that there are several Republicans left who still are only majors.

THE COMMITTEE in charge of Louisville's Derby week has displayed amazing forethought. On Wednesday night of next week, there will be a big parade and pageant, to be followed by dancing in the streets of downtown Louisville.

There is something doing Thursday night, too, but on Friday night, which is the night before the Derby, the meeting of the Kentucky colonels will take place.

Mark well the kindly consideration in the arrangement of those dates. The Kentucky colonels would scarcely be able to do any dancing in the streets on the same night of their meeting.

FIRST REAL MEAL

I told him it didn't taste good and asked if I could have some milk and bread. The Lord told me I couldn't have solid food yet, as it would kill me and that the milk would curdle on my stomach.

"He said I could have beef tea made from the rich heart of beef.

"The Lord's divine purpose has not been revealed to me yet, but it will be before long. Maybe he wants me to preach, if he does, I'm ready.

"Anyway, I'm mighty happy it's all over."

Whitlow, who has stubbornly resisted medical treatment and advice during the fast, declaring "the Lord is my only advisor," today asked Dr. Standifer "to help me."

The physician prescribed a diet of two teaspoons of squirrel broth, a half-ounce of beef broth, one and one-half ounces of milk whey and a spoonful of orange juice every two hours, day and night.

"I had to give him what is available at his mountain cabin," explained the physician, "and I believe it will bring him through."

He said Whitlow today weighed 90 pounds, 37 pounds less than when he started the fast. His temperature was 97 3-5, with normal 98; his pulse 60, with 72 normal.

"His heart muscle is very weak," said the physician, "and skips one out of about every 20 beats. He told me he had slept only one hour out of the last 48."

Whitlow's 70-year-old father, who shot a squirrel out of a towering mountain pine for his son this morning, declared, "we hope up mightily for him now."

"Jackson has been having calls from the Lord for about six years," he said. "Why last Sunday a crippled girl come up here to see him and he told her she wasn't serving the right master, but he would pray for her. He did and she got plumb well."

SQUIRREL FOR BROTH KILLED BY FATHER

STOOPING OAK, Tenn., May 1.—(AP)—Jackson Whitlow, 45-year-old religious faster, called today for "squirrel broth" and a pot of "wild salate," a mountain delicacy similar to turnip greens, for his first "real meal" in 52 days.

Thomas Whitlow, his father, shot a squirrel on Cumberland mountain and the rejoicing wife of the faster lost no time in preparing it.

Whitlow broke his fast yesterday morning by drinking what he said was a half-cupful of grape juice. The neighbors who brought it claimed it was elderberry wine.

The Cumberland mountain fur-trapper said he began the fast last March 10 "at the call of the Lord."

"My fast is over. My trial is ended. I know God is with me and I am not afraid," Whitlow said as he sent his wife, Florence, to boiling the greens for "pot liquor" and cutting the juicy steak into bits for beef broth.

LOVE AND POLITICS ALSO CAUSE FASTS

CHICAGO, May 1.—P.—Jackson Whitlow, scrubed his 52-day fast at Stooping Oak, Tenn., to an edict from heaven but other famous starvers have gone hungry for love, politics, publicity or "a cause."

Politics prompted Terence MacSwiney, the mayor of Cork, to starve himself to death in an Irish prison in 1920. His fast, lasting 74 days, still is the best answer in medical records to the question: How long can man survive without eating?

Giovanni Succi, an Italian, made starving a business.

While doctors recorded the physical results, Succi frequently went 20 to 40 days without food, accepted data in the library of the American Medical association here disclosed today. His fasts were notable chiefly because of feats of stamina such as horseback riding, foot-racing and fencing after 12 foodless days.

The record showed women less inclined to hunger strikes than men, with emotional stress prompting the best female fasting performances.

A French professor, Dejerine, described a case in which a woman suffering from this type of mental anorexia (loss of appetite) reached the point where she could live for long periods if she had a bowl of sugar water beside her, into which she dipped a paint brush from time to time and moistened her lips. This was her only nourishment.

Claims of human fasting for periods of two to eight years have been advanced, but all are discredited by medical science.

In recent years, Mahatma Gandhi's political fasts drew world attention, although they were comparatively brief because of Gandhi's physical frailties. The longest lasted a week.

A forced fast by Dr. D. E. Robertson, imprisoned 10 days under ground in the Moose River mine disaster, went down as one of the most remarkable in medical annals because he was subjected to extreme physical discomforts.

EVACUATION

fusal to respect foreign refugee vessels running his Bay of Biscay gauntlet menaced the success of a mass migration.

Time also became a factor when General Franco arrived on the northern front to take personal command of his troops, about 10 miles east of Bilbao on the Durango-Guernica line.

Government and insurgent reports from the front conflicted. Defense officers declared their lines had brought the attack to a halt. Insurgent communiques said the Basques had fallen back to their last defense lines and were digging in to stand off an offensive against the Basque capital, Bilbao, itself.

In the face of an expected urgent need for speed in removing Bilbao's non-combatants and a scarcity of ships in which to carry them, removal even of the 150,000 mentioned by French and British officials as their goal seemed unlikely.

Diplomatic sources said the evacuation of 300,000 of the city's aged, women and children was beyond possibility.

Officials in London disclosed that British warships would protect merchantmen evacuation of civilians from Bilbao and that the fleet in the Bay of Biscay—a battleship, a cruiser and five destroyers—has been instructed to stand by them outside the three-mile limit.

French coastal towns along the Bay of Biscay have been instructed to prepare for the arrival, possibly tomorrow, of the first of thousands of children expected to be removed from Bilbao. They will be resettled temporarily in the interior of France and returned to Spain when peace is restored.

No time limit was set for the departure of the first vessel from Bilbao.

France delivered his refusal to provide assurances for refugee ships to British embassy officials, temporarily domiciled here. Naval circles hoped, however, that the sinking yesterday of the insurgent battleship Espana by government war planes would make his virtual defiance of Great Britain and France ineffective.

A dispatch from Salamanca insurgent headquarters said France warned passenger planes flying between Bilbao and Bayonne, France, they would be considered government observation craft and would be fired upon. He refused to take responsibility for the safety of passengers.

TWINS, HELENA RAINED OUT, PLAY 2 TODAY

SPORTS CHATTER

By George V. Lofton

THEY LOOK OKAY

The Twins have played eight games at home and Monroe fans have had an opportunity to see just what Dick Burnett has to offer in the way of baseball talent. Personally, they look pretty good to us.

Before the season opened, the Associated Press asked each sports editor in the circuit to write a "prospects" story on his town's team. We summed up the Monroe angle by writing that the Twins had plenty of power, a pitching staff which would be a question mark at the start of the schedule and a defense which wasn't the best in the league.

There's no denying that the Twins have the power. When we wrote that piece about the pitching staff, we were aware of the fact that only Jack Van Orsdol among the veterans was ready to go. Since then Bill Kent has rounded into shape, "Skip" Messina has demonstrated that he's a starting pitcher and Britton Horton has shown flashes of real ability. And also since then, John Burrows, who won 22 games at Gladewater last year, has joined the club. Burrows isn't in shape yet but he'll round into form before another week passes, according to Skipper Hock. Therefore, the pitching staff should be able to carry its load before long.

The defense has improved. Pete Belko was released and a pair of youngsters will battle it out for the shortstop berth. It's too early to tell whether or not Keeler or Anderson can go in this class of baseball. But the second base problem, which loomed large as the season opened, is in capable hands if Clary Hack continues to flash the form he's shown in the past week. His improvement has been no less than sensational. There never was any doubt about first base and third base, as long as Clair Bates and Eddie Hock retain their health. Bates undoubtedly will stack up with the best of 'em at first base and if anybody could improve on Hock's play at third so far, they're not in this league. The defense in the outfield is okay, everything considered. Cully Rikard roams far and wide in center field. Clifford Johnson has passed the test in left. And although Kirk Haynes isn't the smoothest fielder in the league in right, the Twins can afford to have a fly ball safe once in awhile if Kirk continues his good work at the plate. And Walter Butler is an A-1 catcher.

When the season opened there was one glaring weakness, and that was Belko at short. He's gone now, and the present layout looks plenty okay to us.

A NEW ONE

Walter Morris, who directs three leagues from his headquarters here, has been in and around baseball for many, many years but last week he ran into something brand new in alibis.

Wednesday night the Lake Charles baseball club was playing at Lafayette. Lake Charles players parked themselves atop their dugout and kept up a rapid fire of wisecracks at opposing players and umpires. Finally, the plate umpire got tired of it and ordered 'em inside the dugout. They filed in and immediately filed out. That was repested three times and then the umps decided to do something about it, so he slapped a fine on the club.

Thursday President Morris received a long distance call from the manager of the Lake Charles club.

"Tell that smart umpire of yours where to get off," he yelled at J. Walter. "There were three snakes in that dugout. You don't expect ball players to sit in a dugout full of snakes, do you?"

The pres admitted it was a pretty good alibi, but not quite good enough. The fine stuck.

SHORT TAKES

The vets are doing right nicely down in the Evangeline circuit. Old Bobby Goff, Lafayette pilot who still plays second base, is leading the hitters with a neat .475. And Harry Strohm, the venerable third sacker who now skippers the Opelousas club, is banging the apple at a .333 clip.

Bill Perhamus, of the Legion; Captain G. B. Cooley, of the T.-B. association, and Dick Burnett, owner of the Twins, want to publicly thank the merchants and individuals who so generously purchased opening day baseball tickets.

We've seen three Cotton States league clubs—besides Monroe—and Helena looks like the best of the lot.

Sammy Baugh is captain of the T. C. U. baseball team. They say Sammy is pretty fair with that horsehide, too.

John McLaughry, son of Coach Tuss McLaughry, will play fullback for his father's eleven at Brown next fall.

Ben Downing, Jr., crashed the headlines again yesterday when he won the high school golf championship. Few 14-year-old youngsters have as much golfing ability as the Neville kid. And little Bobby Oliver came through nicely to team with Ben in winning the team trophy. Thus Miss Harriet Boyle, Neville golf coach, becomes another Monroe athletic mentor with a perfect record. Mrs. Elizabeth Manhein, coach of the Ouachita girls' basketball team which won the state crown, is the other. Hats off to the ladies!

TIGER NINE EVENS SERIES WITH TECH

Louisiana State Shades Bulldogs, 4-2, In Game Cut Short By Rain

RUSTON, La., May 1.—(Special)—With the Louisiana State university baseball team leading Louisiana Tech, 4-2, rain ended the game in the first half of the eighth inning to conclude a four-game series which the two squads divided. Tech defeated the Tigers here Friday afternoon and won one contest from them in Baton Rouge last week.

Millsaps will meet the Techsters in Ruston Monday and Tuesday afternoons, with Mississippi college being billed here for Thursday and Friday. The Bulldogs will leave next Saturday for a northern trip which includes engagements with Purdue, Notre Dame and Illinois Wesleyan university.

The Bengals this afternoon started off with two runs by Breaux and Hundley in the opening stanza. Breaux singled and advanced to second on the shortstop's error. Hundley made first as the shortstop miscued again and Breaux went to third. A base hit by Warmbrod drove in the two runners.

Walker, who took his base on balls, came in on Delafield's triple in the third. Breaux again tallied for the Tigers in the fifth, having hit a single and being brought home by Walker's base knock.

Hewett counted for Tech in the fourth. He walked, took second when Harris was walked, and scored when Caston went out at first. Burt, reaching first on the third baseman's mistake, going to second on the pitcher's balk, making third on a wild pitch and coming in on the catcher's error, accounted for Tech's second run in the sixth.

MANY WOMEN IN DIXIE TOURNEY

More Than 100 Reservations Already For Annual Southern Golf Meet

ATLANTA, May 1.—(AP)—A fortnight before the field squares off in the qualifying battle for championship positions in the Women's Southern Golf tournament, the local committee reports reservations totalling more than 100, including some of the most capable feminine golfers in America.

The city where the championship was first played 26 years ago is hopeful of bettering the record entry list of 128, established in Texas.

Miss Estelle Lawson Page of Chapel Hill, N. C., whose 78 in the qualifying round a year ago at Canoe Brook is regarded as the best medal run yet played in the national, is one of the leading choices.

A South Carolinian, Kathryn Hemphill of Columbia, offers a fine orthodox style and a sound game that was good enough to share with schoolgirl Patty Berg the major conquests of the Florida winter tournaments.

Perhaps the leading pre-tournament favorite before the flag drops is Marion Miley, the Lexington, Ky., brunette, a semi-finalist at Canoe Brook along with Miss Hemphill. Miss Miley, a consistent winner, was a member of the Curtis Cup team and went to the quarter-finals in the British championship.

Many other prominent women golfers, including holders of numerous sectional and state titles within the section comprising 15 states and the District of Columbia will compete. Mrs. Mark McGarry of St. Petersburg, Fla., will appear in defense of her crown.

Betty Jameson of San Antonio, Texas, winner of the Southern at the age of 16, and Atlanta's schoolgirl state champion, Dorothy Kirby, will be entered, along with Mrs. George Brantley of Jacksonville, Fla., winner of the southern two years ago as Mary Rogers. Edna Saenger of Shreveport, La., and Mrs. Frank Goldthwaite of Fort Worth, Tex.

BEAUMONT, Tex., May 1.—(AP)—Beaumont spotted Fort Worth five runs here today in the opening inning and then came from behind to beat out the Cats, 7 to 5, and salvage the last game of the series to maintain their lead at the Texas league helm.

Manager Al Vincent, on the bench the past 10 days because of a badly spiked hand, returned to the lineup to hang out four singles, steal two bases and sparkle sensationally afield.

VAN ORSDOL TO PITCH OPENER IN TWIN BILL TODAY

Hock Will Start Horton Or Powers In Second Half Of Sunday Bargain

HELENA, Ark., May 1.—(Special)—The first of a two-game series between Monroe's Twins and the local Seaporters was rained out here today and the clubs will play the season's first double header tomorrow.

The downpour descended Saturday morning and stopped shortly after noon but the ground was too wet to permit any baseball. The rain started again tonight and there was some doubt that the Sunday bargain bill would be played, although Manager Rod Whitney of the Helena club said the double header would be played if at all possible. A capacity crowd is expected for the Sunday attraction as local fans are anxious to see the Monroe club, whose reputation for having a powerful array preceded them here.

Manager Eddie Hock said he would start Jack Van Orsdol, his ace right-hander, in the first game Sunday. The Monroe pilot said either Britton Horton, a young lefthander from Sterlington, La., or Gould Powers, burly righthander who was with Cleveland in the Cotton States last year, would start the second game.

The Monroe skipper said he would play Andersen at shortstop in the first game and send Curtis Keeler to the short field in the abbreviated night cap. Manager Hock said he was well pleased with his lineup as a whole and that he would experiment with the two shortstops until "cutting down time" in an effort to determine the best combination.

Several members of the Twins are well known here, having played with Cleveland in the Cotton States last year. Local fans have plenty of respect for Cully Rikard and Kirk Haynes, a pair of heavy hitting outfielders who were the outstanding members of the Cleveland club last season.

VICKSBURG, Miss., May 1.—(Special)—A wild throw by Yazell let in the winning run for Vicksburg Saturday in the Cotton States league, the error giving the Billies a 6-5 10-inning victory over the Pine Bluff Judges.

Both teams made 11 hits but the Bills got the break and played a tighter defensive game in the pinches. Pine Bluff made three errors and Vicksburg two.

Pompoon And Brooklyn Loom As Derby Favorites

By John J. Romano

Pompoon or Brooklyn!

Take your pick is the way Colonel E. R. Bradley and J. H. Loucheim have the Kentucky Derby figured out. The owners of the most highly-rated pair in the Blue Grass classic think so much of the chances of their thoroughbreds that they have made a little side wager of $10,000 on the outcome of the race.

Pompoon heightened his chances of winning the Derby by a rousing display of speed and courage in winning the Paumonok Handicap. Getting away to a bad start and trailing in fifth place until the half-way mark was reached, Pompey put on a burst of speed seldom seen so early in the season and negotiated the six furlongs in 1:11, which was within three-fifths of a second of the track record.

This performance set at ease whatever doubt remained that the Loucheim pet was unsound. Returning to the stable after a workout at Columbia, S. C., Pompoon was noticeably lumping. A hasty though thorough examination disclosed a twisted shoe. This report was discounted until the Paumonok was run, and disbelievers were quickly convinced that barring accidents Pompoon would be a dangerous threat in the big race next Saturday.

Won Six Out Of Eight

Pompoon has a better record than Brooklyn. As a two-year-old he faced the barrier eight times and won six of his races in splendid fashion. He was beaten by No Sir and Reaping Reward in eye-deceiving finishes, and if one were given to hunches he would say that Pompoon can be beaten by horses owned by women because Mary Hirsch owns No Sir and Mrs. Ethel V. Mars owns Reaping Reward. That is as far as one should go when picking horses other than by the sensible method of form.

Brooklyn was out only four times last year. He blazed into prominence by winning the Walden and racing luck alone prevented him from taking down the highly-prized Pimlico Futurity. He is a Kentucky-bred colt by Blue Larkspur, a Derby winner.

Colonel Bradley is especially keen about the chances of the horse he paid $20,000 for as a yearling. That he did not start him oftener last year was not due to any fear the colt might pull up unsound or lose favor with the fans. The colonel has a method about doing things other owners would not consider proper, despite the fact the colonel sent four winners of the Derby to the post.

There may be another angle to Colonel Bradley's confidence in Brooklyn winning from Pompoon. Eleven years ago Pompey, sire of Pompoon, was the heavily-backed favorite to cop the Derby. The Kentuckian did not think so and backed his opinion all over the country. As the roar of the crowd increased to a mighty crescendo as the leaders tore around the backstretch and headed for home the colors of the Idle Hour Stock farm were in the van. But the Bradley entry, Bubbling Over and Bagenbaggage, finished one-two with the eastern favorite out of the money.

Does Colonel Bradley follow hunches? This question is asked by those who, matching Bubbling Over's record with Brooklyn, note a certain similarity in the few appearances the thoroughbreds made in actual racing. Bubbling Over did not have many races as a two-year-old. In the spring of 1926 he was sent the mile and an eighth route in the Blue Grass Stakes and won by himself in the sparkling time of 1:49 3-5. This was a tip-off that Bubbling Over could negotiate the longer Derby route, and that he did. Brooklyn has not been asked to go further than six furlongs. If Colonel Bradley is worried about asking his colt to go the longer distance he certainly is not showing it in the many wagers he has placed in the winter books getting as high as 10 to 1 for his money.

A victory for Pompoon would see that colt in practically all the big stake races of the season. Jerry Loucheim does not mean to keep the bay colt in a display case. Dan Clark, the veteran horseman, who has been in complete charge of the east's favorite was so confident of Pompoon's ability after testing him in a half-mile spin, which Pompoon ran in the fast time of 47 1-2 seconds, that he predicted the horse would win the Paumonok going away. But for a frenzied start, in which Pompoon was shuffled back at the start, race-goers were certain a new track record would have been made.

Vagaries of the weather do not inspire fear for Pompoon's chances. Should the track be slow or muddy from rain Pompoon will not be at a disadvantage. His footing is sound and certain and that is the tip-off on a mud lark.

It looks like Pompoon or Brooklyn. Take Jerry Loucheim and Colonel Bradley's word for it. But watch out for an outsider pulling away from the field and sending the admirers of the favorites home tearing up their dope sheets. It is a mile and a quarter and anything is liable to happen in a race of this kind.

CUBS BLAST 4 CARD HURLERS TO WIN, 11-4

BRUINS COMBINE HITS AND ERRORS FOR EASY VICTORY

Gas House Gang Makes Six Errors To Drop Second Loss Of Season

CHICAGO, May 1.—(AP)—The St. Louis Cardinals' Gas House Gang blew up with a reverberating bang at Wrigley field today, taking an 11 to 4 licking from the Chicago Cubs. It was the Cardinals' second loss of the season.

The Bruins won the third game of the campaign by blasting four St. Louis hurlers for 13 hits and took full advantage of six St. Louis errors.

The Cubs started with a rush, scoring twice in the first inning, adding another pair in the second and a single market in the third. The Cardinals, meanwhile, pushed over three runs in the second on a single by Medwick, a double by Mize and another two-base clout by Pepper Martin aided by an error by Stan Hack.

In the seventh the Cubs landed on Andrews for three more runs to cinch matters and pushed over three more in the eighth on three hits and as many Cardinal miscues.

Joe Marty, rookie outfielder, helped the Cub attack along with a double and two singles.

PIRATES TRIM REDS

CINCINNATI, May 1.—(AP)—The Pittsburgh Pirates found the range in the sixth inning today and bunched hits off Wild Bill Hallahan to come from behind and defeat the Cincinnati Reds, 3 to 1.

A crowd of 4,846 saw Red Lucas, veteran Nemesis of the Reds in years past, allow them but four safeties, including two in the first when they made their only score.

Lloyd "Witey" Moore replaced Hallahan in the ninth after Handley tripled to open the frame. Moore walked two men, loading the bases, and then struck out three. It was the Reds' eighth defeat against a lone victory for the season.

PHILS DOWN DODGERS

BROOKLYN, May 1.—(AP)—Lefty LaMaster, who is rapidly taking rank as the National league's rookie pitching find of the season, hung up his third victory today as he hurled the Phillies to a 4 to 2 victory over the Dodgers.

Although wild, giving seven bases on balls, the little southpaw handcuffed the Dodgers with five hits and fanned seven as he outpitched Fred Frankhouse and Tom Baker all the way. A crowd of 9,602 turned out.

Leo Norris led the Phils' seven-hit attack with two singles and a double. Two of the three Brooklyn errors contributed to the Phils' scoring. Both of the misplays came in the fourth.

A double steal by Norris and George Scharein added another run in the sixth and Morrie Arnovich's triple drove in the final tally in the seventh.

DiMaggio Leads Yankee Attack To Beat Red Sox, 3-2

YANK OUTFIELDER RETURNS TO GET 3 STRAIGHT HITS

Hadley And Malone Combine To Shade Boston Before 34,381 Customers

NEW YORK, May 1.—(AP)—Joe DiMaggio, minus his tonsils but with his batting eye still intact, played his first full game of the 1937 season today and collected three straight hits as the Yankees nosed out the Boston Red Sox 3 to 2 before a crowd of 34,381.

Old Pat Malone stepped into the breach with the bases loaded in the eighth inning to save the victory for the Yankees and Bump Hadley, who weakened after pitching three-hit ball for more than seven innings. Malone, in his usual rescue act, struck out Rookie Fabian Gaffke to end the threat.

DiMaggio, who pinch-hit a single yesterday, followed in today's full-game debut with three one-base blows in a row before fanning on one of Jack Wilson's fast ones in the seventh to end his streak. Taking over his usual third spot in the batting order, his record for the day was three-for-four with two runs scored.

The pitching victory for Hadley was his first of the season. He charmed the Red Sox hitters with three well-spaced hits through the first seven frames, then grew wild in the eighth and walked three men.

The veteran Rube Walberg, Boston's starter, gave Hadley a tight pitchers' duel all the way until he gave way to Wilson in the seventh. Hadley fanned eight batters, but got in trouble by issuing as many passes.

TIGERS WALLOP CHISOX

DETROIT, May 1.—(AP)—Veteran Tommy Bridges, making a delayed 1937 debut because of injuries, weathered a first-inning attack to hurl the Detroit Tigers to an 11 to 4 victory over Chicago's White Sox. He scattered six Chicago hits.

The Tigers batted Ted Lyons from the box with a six-run outburst in the third inning, and scored five more runs off Clint Brown in the sixth.

Goose Goslin, Detroit left fielder was felled by a fast pitch by Chelini at the start of the seventh but quickly recovered and apparently suffered no serious hurt. Good baseball weather brought 22,000 fans to Navin field.

BROWNS BEAT INDIANS

ST. LOUIS, May 1.—(AP)—Elon "Chief" Hogsett held the Cleveland Indians to three hits today as the St. Louis Browns rallied in the eighth inning to score two runs off Denny Galehouse and take the series opener, 3 to 2.

Cleveland took a lead which lasted two innings on Sammy Hale's home run in the sixth inning. In the eighth, Bill Knickerbocker's single drove in Rolly Hemsley and Mel Mazzera with the winning runs.

The Indians' first run in the second resulted from a double by Julius Solters and a single by Frank Pytlak. Manager Rogers Hornsby played second for St. Louis.

A'S SHADE NATS

PHILADELPHIA, May 1.—(AP)—The Athletics defeated Washington 2 to 1 today for the fourth straight time as George Caster, a 28-year-old rookie from Portland, Ore., bested Pete Appleton in a pitcher's battle. Caster yielded only three hits and Appleton five.

Caster, who also defeated Appleton April 23 at Washington in his first start, pitched six hitless innings before Joe Kuhel opened the seventh with an infield single. In the ninth, Myer walked and Kuhel again singled. Simmons popped out, but Stone singled to center to score Myer. With the tying run on third, Lewis popped to Cissell for the final out.

BARONS WIN AGAIN

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., May 1.—(AP)—Good pitching brought the Birmingham Barons their 9 to 1 straight victory here today as Cy Moore turned back the Knoxville Smokies in a 2-1 game. Joiner and Jones allowed one run between them in the two previous contests with Nashville.

Mrs. Girault Rated Strong Contender In Annual Women's Golf Meet

BATON ROUGE, La., May 1.—(AP)—The 13th annual Louisiana state women's golf tournament, beginning Monday, shapes up as a duel between entries of Shreveport and New Orleans.

Mrs. Sam Israel, defending champion and recent winner of the New Orleans city championship, Mrs. Leon Wolf, Jr., runner-up in the New Orleans city play, and Mrs. Neville Levy presented a strong New Orleans delegation to the tournament.

Other strong Shreveport contenders are Mrs. Abner Cohn, 1932 state champion who was runner up the past two years, and Mrs. Harry Morgan, for several years one of the best women players in the state who is returning to tournament play this year.

Mrs. H. T. Rogers, Jr., of Hammond and Mrs. E. S. Gerard of Monroe also are listed strong contenders.

There will be an 18-hole qualifying round Monday with match play following through the finals Friday. Two scores of the three low qualifiers from each club will be considered in determining the team championship.

WALKER, WANER LEAD IN HITTING

Detroit's Famous 'Funny Man' Tops 'Em All With .593 Through Friday

NEW YORK, May 1.—(AP)—They've been laughing at Gerry Walker's antics for so long, that folks just can't believe the Detroit Tiger outfielder is leading the big league batting parade.

But there it is in black and white. Gerry, the "gag man" of Mickey Cochrane's troupe, is hitting a neat .593 today after the first half dozen games, 13 points in front of his nearest American league rival, Rick Ferrell of the Boston Red Sox.

He has clubbed out 16 hits in 27 times at bat, more safe blows than any other big league player at the moment.

Over in the National league, Pittsburgh's Paul Waner, the 1936 champion, is picking up where he left off last year. Through the first seven games, he has collected 14 hits in 29 chances for a .483 mark to set the pace, with Frank Demaree of the Cubs chasing him, 13 points away.

Ducky Medwick, Waner's closest rival last year, slipped in yesterday's game, going hitless in four chances, but nevertheless held third place.

Big surprise of the American league early season race, outside of Walker, are the Yankees. "Murderers' row," which was expected to continue its clouting runaway of last year, failed to place a man in

TWO SOFTBALL LOOPS BEGIN PLAY THIS WEEK

CITY LEAGUE TO OPEN SCHEDULE MONDAY EVENING

Eight Teams Ready In Junior Circuit; Twilight Starts Season Tuesday

The City softball league swings into action here tomorrow afternoon in what promises to be one of its best seasons, with eight teams forming the league which is headed by Dr. D. T. Milam, president.

Tomorrow's games will find the Adler Garagemen, defending champions, facting Tidwell and Sons aggregation at the Barkdull Faulk diamond.

The Cooperative Dairymen will tangle with Collens Pharmacy at the Plum street diamond; Monroe Hardware and Southern Hardware will open on the Missouri Pacific diamond; and the Presbyterians will clash with the Doctors-Druggists on the newly completed Y's park at Smoot field.

The Y's park, built for softball enthusiasts by the city of Monroe, the Y's Men's club and the City and Twilight softball leagues, is the only park of its kind in this part of the state, and it was announced last night that the park would be in good shape for Monday's opener, barring heavy rains. The park is surrounded by a board fence and the diamond is laid out. The only remaining work to make the park an up-to-date softball battle ground is the erection of bleachers.

There were still some team managers who had not filed their preliminary list of 16 players with the secretary last night, and Dr. Milam is warning these managers to have the list filed 24 hours before game time to avoid any possible protests that could arise if the rosters had not been filed. The preliminary roster may be changed by the managers from time to time until the first of June when the final roster must be filed. The final list cannot be added to unless the team is standing .300 per cent or less, or the league president sees fit to permit such changes for the welfare of the league.

The first round schedule has been announced as follows:

BUDGE AND MAKO WIN DOUBLES IN STRAIGHT SETS

Two Singles Matches Today To Be Mere Formality; Aussies Beat Mexico

By Russ Newland

SAN FRANCISCO, May 1.—(AP)—The United States Davis Cup team swept into the second round of international tennis competition today with a one-sided doubles victory over Japan.

Lanky Donald Budge, first ranking player of the country, and stocky Gene Mako, national doubles champions, teamed to blast the Japanese duo of Jiro Yamagishi and Fumiteru Nakano off the courts, 6-0, 6-1, 6-4.

The victory gave the series, three matches out of five, to the Americans. Two singles events tomorrow will be a mere formality.

The series was virtually clinched yesterday when Budge regained some of his fireball tactics to defeat Nakano, 6-1, 6-1, 6-0, in the opening singles.

Frankie Parker, second national ranking star, followed with a surprise win over Yamagishi, Japanese singles and doubles champion, 6-3, 2-6, 8-6, 6-1.

A crowd of 1,200 fans saw the long-legged Budge and his agile teammate overpower the Japanese almost as they pleased.

They broke through every Japanese service in the first set, piled up points on brilliant placements and capitalized on streaks of wildness on the part of the Japanese to make it a love set.

In the second set, Nakano won his serve in the sixth game after the Americans had twice brought it to deuce. Budge netted and Nakano cracked over a service ace.

Budge and Mako cut down the pace in the third set and the Japanese picked up four games, Yamagishi and Nakano each winning a service. The Americans had many out and net balls in the losing games but after their rivals had brought the score to 4-5 settled down to win with dispatch.

Nakano batted the ball out of court to terminate the match.

As a result of the victory the United States moved into the North American zone finals and will face Australia, conqueror of Mexico today, at Forest Hills, N. Y., the latter part of this month.

Australia defeated America last year in the zone finals.

AUSTRALIA WINS

MEXICO CITY, May 1.—(AP)—Australia's experienced doubles team of Jack Crawford and Adrian Quist put a quick end to Mexico's faint Davis Cup hopes today by scoring a straight-set victory, 6-2, 6-3, 6-3, over the Mexican team of Alfonso Unda and Daniel Hernandez.

The triumph was the third straight for Australia, which sent Quist and Vivian McGrath out to win the opening singles clashes yesterday, and clinched the visitors' place in the American zone final next month.

The superb net play of Crawford and Quist kept the Mexicans continually on the defensive. Only once did Unda and Hernandez take the lead, at 3-1 in the last set, but the Aussies staged a spurt of unbeatable tennis to run out the set and match. At no time were they in real danger.

ALLEN JOINS FELLER ON INDIANS' HOSPITAL LIST

ST. LOUIS, May 1.—(AP)—Johnny Allen, Cleveland Indian's pitcher who won 20 and lost 10 games last year, joined Bob Feller, the Indians' strike-out champion, on the ailing list today.

Allen was taken to St. John's hospital, apparently suffering from appendicitis.

Pitcher Feller tore several arm fibers last Saturday in pitching to the St. Louis Browns. He probably will be out of the game several days more.

ANEROID WINS BALTIMORE HANDICAP BY 3 LENGTHS

BALTIMORE, May 1.—(AP)—Aneroid, J. A. Manfuso's fast sprinter, accounted for his fourth successive victory today by winning the Baltimore Spring Handicap, main event of a racing program at Pimlico which furnished Maryland's third largest daily double pay-off.

After leading practically all the way, the four year old son of the Porter-Outburst, carrying top weight of 117 pounds, whipped Felix Spatola's Wise Prince by three lengths. He covered the six furlongs in 1.11 4-5, one fifth quicker than the record set by Wise Prince in the first running of the stake in 1935.

A. C. Compton's Weston was third trailed a head by his stable-mate, Clingendaal, a three year old.

The daily double play-off was $1.693 for $2, exceeded in Maryland only by pay-offs of $2,026 and $1,907 at Bowie in 1935. Fourteen persons were the lucky holders of tickets on the winning combination—W. M. Elder's Enamor in the first race and Mrs. H. M. Pearson's Tiempo, in the third.

WINNING GOLF by Lawson Little

CHICAGO, Ill., May 1.—For the first ime in the short history of the masters' tournament at Augusta, Ga., perfect weather prevailed throughout the tournament. The course itself was the picture of perfection, but still the layout withstood most of the attacks made upon it by the finest golfers in the land.

In the first round Byron Nelson scored a beautiful 33-33 for a 66, and the lowest score of the tournament. Although perfect weather prevailed without any troublesome wind, this was the only score well down in the sixties during the entire tournament.

The supporters of Bobby Jones, and nearly every one was including the players, were again disappointed. Bobby, now in his seventh year of retirement from active golf competition, has definitely lost one of the greatest assets of competitive golf, a feature of the game he was master at during his reign as golfing emperor of the world. He has lost his ability to concentrate like he did in the old days. Then he concentrated on each shot of every round he played. During the finals of a tournament that meant concentration for 36 holes, or for more than six hours in a day. Now it lasts only for the space of three or four holes, and returns again for a similar period a hole or two later.

Jones Could Repeat

Bobby's swing looks just as good as ever. It might have a little wrinkle here and there, but these could certainly be ironed out with practice and competition. The question, "Can Bobby Jones come back?" has been debated in golfing circles just as much as the question of Dempsey's comeback was several years ago in fight circles. It is my firm belief that Bobby Jones, if he really wanted, could come back and be just as fine a golfer as he was in 1930. He is still a young man in the golfing world, just 35, and he should have at least eight and probably nearer 15 years of brilliant playing left before he became too old to compete with the ever increasing skill of younger golfers.

Wind Helps Nelson

To get back to the tournament, Byron Nelson tacked a 72 to his opening 66 to maintain his lead at the half way mark. At the end of 54 holes Nelson found his third round 75 had allowed several players to catch him. In the last round he was out in 38, and the tournament seemed lost. Then the uncertainty of golf again entered the game. For the first time during the tournament a little wind sprang up and made the course a little tricky.

Byron then played the last nine in the wind in just 32 strokes, and romped in with a 70 to give him a grand total of 283 and the tournament by two shots. The highlight of that last nine was Nelson's chip into the hole for an eagle three on the difficult thirteenth hole. This was the stimulant that was needed and it came at the right time because it gave him confidence to go on and collect enough pars and birdies to win.

Nelson is one of the finest hitters of a golf ball that we have in the game. He is just a youngster, who came out of Texas about three years ago. He is tall and thin, so has to employ an upright swing with plenty of hand action. Personally he is one of the nicest boys in the golf game and his victory was an exceedingly popular one.

OUIMET'S GOLF by FRANCIS OUIMET

A field of 170 players is the allotment decided on for the National Open this year by the U. S. G. A. The affair will be held over the Oakland Hills Country club at Birmingham, Mich., not far distant, perhaps a duffer's dream of a good drive and mashie pitch, from the scene of the recent sit-down strikes at Detroit. It is to be hoped that the occasion is not made to measure for a caddy demonstration along similar lines when the affair takes place June 10, 11 and 12.

Of this field of 170, 32 players will be exempt from sectional qualifying tests. This means quite a good deal to those fortunate enough to fall into this category, for the qualifying rounds in this day and time are not a great deal less grueling than the classic itself. The competition is so intense that even a prominent golfer needs practically the peak of his form to insure success here. While the exempt players are bringing their game along slowly the qualifying contestant will have to keep his game at tops for a matter of two weeks to stand any kind of a chance.

Far West Competes First

Competitors in sectional qualifying rounds in the Los Angeles, San Francisco and Tacoma districts will compete for places Monday, May 17. This is a matter of 13 days ahead of the rest of the country but will give the U. S. G. A. plenty of time to discover the eligible ones, and allow them to travel to the scene of the Open in time for a few practice rounds before the affairs starts.

Other sections will compete on Tuesday, June 1, for places. The entry list for the various qualifying districts closes on May 8 for the far west and on May 18 for the rest of the country. The number of qualifiers in each district will be determined by the championship committee after the entry list is closed. This is necessary to determine the number of entries and the playing strength of each district so that a definite base for allotting places may be had.

Stars Must Qualify

While the 32 eligible players, who need not participate in the qualifying rounds, embrace some of the most prominent names in golf, there are some high ranking golfers who are not included. Lawson Little, Craig Wood, Ed Dudley, Olin Dutra, Byron Nelson and Sam Snead will have to battle for a chance to compete in main event. Any one of the above golfers has the game to win the Open championship yet it may happen that one, two or even more may not reach the championship proper.

Last year Lawson Little had high hopes of making his first pro year a great one with an eye on the Open crown as the chief prize plum. Yet Lawson found out that the qualifying rounds were a bit tougher than the amateur competition he was used to meeting and failed to get by the first barrier. It's a foregone conclusion that Lawson will come up, for the qualifying rounds this year, geared to his best performance and it will not be because of inactivity or lack of preparation if he fails.

A number of places will be reserved for acceptable foreign players who may be visiting the United States. They may be exempted from sectional qualifying rounds at the discretion of the championship committee. Also exempt will be Al Watrous, the club professional. The club professional entertaining the championship is eligible if he has been the club's professional for at least one year.

EVEN WALTER DOESN'T SEE HOW HE DOES IT

WASHINGTON, May 1.—(AP)—Walter Johnson, speed ball king of other years, is mystified by the fast ball pitch of Bob Feller, Cleveland's rookie.

Taking a holiday from his farming chores at nearby Germantown, Md., Johnson came to town today and saw the American league's official motion pictures of various stars in action, including Feller.

"Pretty fast, pretty fast," Johnson said. "That boy's got something there all right. I don't see how he does it, though," Johnson said.

"Does what?"

"How he gets all that speed with that hitch in his throw. There's nothing smooth in it that I can see. Doesn't even straighten his arm out when he lets go. A lot of power there, though.

"Notice the way he gets that ball off and takes that step to the right. Gosh, he's got an awful edge on the batter.

"He lets the ball go from in close. He's right behind it after he lets it go. The ball comes up to the plate against the background of Feller's shirt. The darn thing is on top of the hitter before he can see it. I wouldn't be surprised if they couldn't locate the ball before it's too late to take a decent cut at it. That's a big edge for that boy."

His own pitching motion, Johnson explained, was strikingly in contrast. "I let the ball go from out here," he said, stretching his arm to full length, parallel with his hip. "Mine was a kind of side arm motion and Feller is almost overhand."

L. T. I. ELEVEN TO PLAY NINE GAMES

Coach Maroney Books Heavy Schedule For Pelican Squad Next Fall

A nine-game schedule, including the strongest class B elevens in this part of the state, is in store for the Louisiana Training institute Pelicans when they open their 1937 season here September 17, it was announced last night by Coach C. E. "Sonny" Maroney.

The Pelicans tackle what is expected to be their toughest schedule in years with five powerful class B aggregations, Wisner, Grayson, Waterproof, Columbia and Choudrant, included on the list of games. The five elevens were in the playoff battle for district titles of this area last fall and can be expected to be as strong as ever.

Last season the Pelicans, with only three experienced players, got off to a slow start, but swung into the win column about mid-season and were going strong when their campaign ended. Coach Maroney will have better material to work with this year and believes that L. T. I. shows promise of having its best eleven in several years.

Ferguson Spann, stellar ball carrier and punter, who developed considerably during the past season, will be back to bear the brunt of the Pelicans' backfield chores along with Erwin Stewart, who is a good passer and ball carrier.

In the line, the locals will have J. Dowdy, Don Roane and Norman D vis, all rugged workers, and Howard Griggs, an especially good defensive end.

The Pelicans are all busy playing baseball at the present and will be kept active in some phase of sport up until about the middle of August when Coach Maroney will hold the first practice sessions.

The 1937 schedule has been announced as follows: September 17, Lisbon, here; September 24, Clarence, here; October 2, Wisner, there; October 9, Grayson, here; October 16, Hico, here; October 22, Columbia, there; October 29, open; November 5, Waterproof, there; November 12, open; November 19, Choudrant, here; November 24; Gilbert, here.

STARK, HOLDOUT UMPIR LAST YEAR, BACK IN FO

NEW YORK, May 1.—(AP)—Al (Dolly) Stark, who created a sen tion a year ago by becoming the holdout umpire of record, is back baseball.

Ford C. Frick, president of the tional league, announced today S had been signed for the remainde the season.

Stark was brought in to relieve veteran Cy Pfirman, who is goin the inactive list for the balance the year because of his health.

Whether Stark will be paid than the $9,000 he was getting he began his holdout was not vulged.

The Chamber of Commerce Campaign

The Chamber of Commerce of Monroe and West Monroe is now organizing its forces to embrace representation of every business person and firm as a member.

This movement is one that is highly important to every citizen sincerely interested in the progress and prosperity of the Twin Cities. An active, energetic Chamber of Commerce is an index of a community's aliveness to its own needs. Such an organization serves a clearing house for the solution of civic problems as they relate to commercial, industrial and community expansion and development. Without such a clearing house the community becomes stagnant. Every phase of the city's life feels the lack of the incentives that can only be produced when the varied interests are cooperating together for mutual advantage and stimulation.

Hence, the cooperative effort must be widespread. It must truly represent all the activities of the community. It is just as important for the professional interests to be represented in the Chamber of Commerce as it is for the business and industrial interests.

The present campaign for membership is intended to meet this requirement in Chamber of Commerce activity. Monroe "boosters" are heartily for the campaign. They are in favor of a vigorous program which will tie in with the efforts of the Louisiana Commerce and Industry Board, appointed by Governor Leche to make the whole nation conscious of the opportunities and advantages of this state, educationally, commercially, industrially and otherwise.

Let's help to make the Chamber of Commerce the biggest thing in Monroe and West Monroe.

from the Lake Pontchartrain seawall. Four persons with him were stunned.

Mrs. Lottie Ryan, of Gulfport, Miss., where another hard blow was felt, died from exhaustion in a hospital after she, her husband and nine children fled out into the storm from their dwelling.

The storm blew out of the southwest and was accompanied generally by northeast winds which late today continued to whip the coast along the east rim of the gulf of Mexico.

The United States weather bureau at 8:30 a.m., central standard time, ordered northeast storm warnings hoisted from Houston, Tex., to Carrabelle, Fla., but at 4:30 p.m. ordered the warnings down from Houston, Tex., to Morgan City, La.

W. R. Stevens, of the United States weather bureau in New Orleans, stated that President Roosevelt and his yacht, the Potomac, were not in any danger from the storm while he was on his fishing trip in the gulf of Mexico. The president, out to transfer from the destroyer Moffett to his yacht, the Potomac, in the vicinity of Corpus Christi, Tex., was beyond the storm area, Stevens said.

The storm temporarily flooded some New Orleans streets last night, gave Gulfport, Miss., a hard blow and demolished the Louisiana and Arkansas railroad depot at Simmesport, La., and the depot and Catholic chapel at Phillipston, La.

Several communities were cut off from communication for hours and telephone and electric service was seriously interfered with.

Several buildings were unroofed in Gulfport, trees were laid low, and a number of small craft in Mississippi Sound were sunk or beached by the near tornadic winds of last night. Hail fell like rain there, but quickly melted.

A brick smokestack was toppled through the roof in Kings Daughters hospital, Gulfport, and firemen covered the hole with tarpaulin.

A baby girl was born by candle light to Mr. and Mrs. Earl Buckley in the hospital while the electric current was off.

Two churches there were damaged. Sail boats and small power boats were submerged in the harbor. The pleasure yacht, "Sally 4," caught in the storm while en route to port from Ship island, lost her deck, but her owner, James G. Smith and party of friends aboard, managed to make shore after a harrowing experience.

The MacSmith Garment factory officials in Gulfport estimated their plant was damaged $2,500 and that their stock suffered a similar loss. Glass windows were crashed and a large amount of minor damage was wreaked in Gulfport.

MAY DAY PARADES

ish Socialists; one in San Juan damaged a newspaper building and shook the city.

Cossacks by the thousands thundered through Moscow's Red square where a million persons massed in a monster demonstration. Eight hundred war planes zoomed overhead as Joseph Stalin reviewed the assemblage.

A half million more persons jammed Paris streets to the resounding strains of the Communist Internationale, the day's theme song at Leftist centers everywhere.

Fists clenched in salute and shouts of "save Bilbao!" rang out as planes wrote the besieged Basque capital's name in smoke in the sky.

Before 50,000 Berlin workers, Adolf Hitler denounced "clerical" interference in reich politics, echoing a speech of a few minutes before to 180,000 school children assembled in the Olympic stadium.

A May day manifesto of the Communist international named the United States and France among nations where workers had "checked" capitalism.

Parades and a demonstration by many thousands in New York's Union Square were followed by a rally of 8,000 garment workers at the Randall's island stadium. A battery of labor leaders urged them to strive for "industrial democracy."

London was preoccupied by a strike of 25,000 bus drivers, who sought slower schedules and shorter working days.

The day brought Hollywood a great labor crisis. A threatened strike involving 10,000 union movie workers slowly gathered momentum.

REVIEW REVEALS

in industrial development. "Thirteen more corporations were chartered during the month of March than in February. Extractive industries and investment activity led the list in the application for new charters."

Electric power consumption increased 1.7 per cent, according to the Review, while telephones in use increased eight per cent and hardware five per cent.

"Comparing March, 1937, sales with those of the corresponding month of 1936," the Review continued, "every business series from which we receive data reported an increase. Eight of the 10 business series collected show gains this March over last March of 10 per cent or above."

Prices of Louisiana farm products had a very definite trend during March with eight of the 19 products advancing, five declining and six showing no change. The long time upward trend was even more pronounced, the Review added, with 15 of the 19 products advancing as compared with March a year ago.

Retail food costs in New Orleans at March 15 were seven-tenths per cent greater than at February 16 as compared with an increase registered in the United States of one and one-tenth for the period.

"The major part of this increase was due to the increase in the price of fruits and vegetables," the Review noted.

Costs of all foods at New Orleans are considerably higher than last year, the Review said, being 6.6 per cent higher compared with a 7.4 per cent increase for the United States as a whole.

Man To Cross Half Of Globe In 'Iron Lung' To Get Home

PEIPING, North China, May 1.—(AP)—Frederick B. Snite, Jr., an American who was stricken with infantile paralysis while on a world tour, has lived here for a year in an "iron lung." He still is paralyzed below the neck, but he is going home at last to Chicago. He will travel in the "lung" by a combination rolling hotel and hospital and by ship.

The 26-year-old son of wealthy parents looks forward to the hazardous journey. It is high adventure for the smiling invalid.

"At least I shall be the first person to travel half way around the world in a respirator," he says, grinning.

As plans formulated during the past six months begin to mature, tremendous technical and physical difficulties are being overcome by experts preparing for the expedition to get young Snite safely to Shanghai and back to America.

No expense is being spared, and the total cost of the expedition is expected to amount to over $50,000 American currency.

Elaborate precautions are being taken so that absolutely nothing that might go wrong on the 800-mile trip by rail to Shanghai from Peiping can hold up the Snite "traveling hospital" or endanger Frederick's life.

The youth, in his iron lung, will be removed from Peiping Union Medical college to the railway station by truck. A gasoline-motored generator will furnish electric power for the respirator.

Another gasoline generator will be installed in the baggage car he will use when the patient reaches the train. The entourage also will use a dining car and two sleepers for the 800-mile ride to Shanghai. Twenty-odd persons will accompany the invalid on that stage of the trip. Six Chinese nurses will go on with him to Chicago.

On the Shanghai leg, three mechanics will guard the respirator and a British engineer, W. G. Alston, will supervise details.

Two special compressed air "resuscitators" will be in the emergency equipment, although the iron lung can be operated by hand, if worse comes to worse.

Two dressers, a dietitian and a physiotherapist probably will be in the China entourage, too. A complete outfit of sheets, pads, bandages and gauzes has been prepared.

Hundreds of tons of ice must be carried on the train for as Snite reaches warmer climate he must be ice-packed to guard against irritation and bed sores.

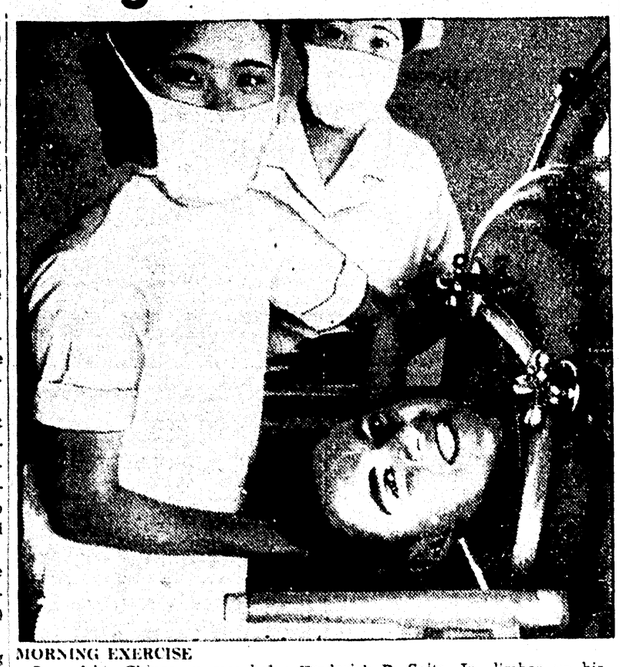
At Pukow the whole train will be ferried across the Yangtze river to Nanking and then it will steam on to Shanghai. There, it is expected, the worst part of the journey will be over.

Snite will be put aboard the SS. President Coolidge, which is to sail on June 6. A new respirator, brought from America, will be awaiting him. Two nurses from Billings hospital, Chicago, will be there, too, to assist the six Chinese attendants.

Snite's guardians have gone to England to be prepared to fight seasickness if it should imperil the patient's life. There they got a special suction pump to combat digestive disturbances.

Dr. Claude E. Forkner, Harvard-trained associate professor of medicine at Peiping medical college, who has been in charge ever since Snite was stricken, will make the entire trip with his wife and two children. The doctor was to have sailed on home leave last June but stayed on to see the case through.

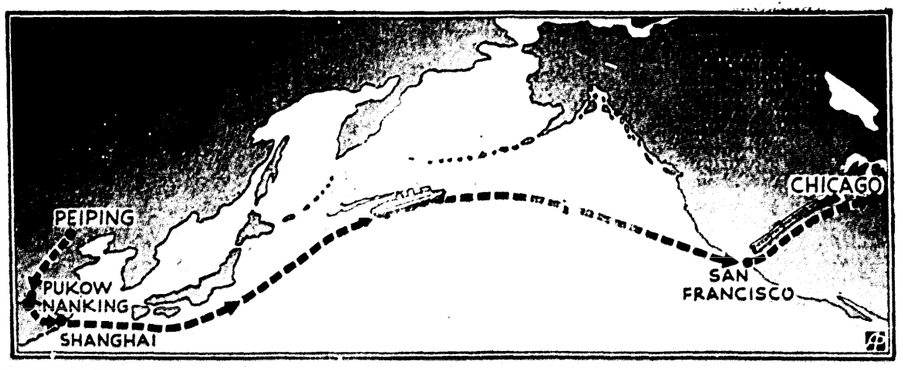
Mr. and Mrs. Frederick B. Snite, Sr., the patient's parents, and his sister, Mary Loretta Snite, will be with him. So will Clarence J. Dillon, a classmate of Snite's at Notre Dame, who has been at his side ever since he became ill.



MORNING EXERCISE
One of his Chinese nurses helps Frederick B. Snite, Jr., limber up his neck, the only exercise the "iron lung" patient can take.

NEXT, A SHAVE
The infantile paralysis victim who soon is to travel half-way around the world, is visited daily by the hospital barber.

THEN BREAKFAST
Miss Chin Yuan-mei, dietitian of Peiping Union Medical college, takes the order from a patient whose appetite never flags.



LONG JOURNEY HOME
The man in the "iron lung" will be put on the train at Peiping. At Pukow the whole train will be ferried across the Yangtze river to Nanking and proceed to Shanghai. From there, in a new "lung" aboard the S. S. President Coolidge, he will sail on June 6 for San Francisco. On the west coast he takes another train to Chicago, the perilous journey's end.

ADAM BILLIOT

if you put a cigarette sidewise in your mouth it'll tilt the craft over) crossed the finish line far ahead of second place Benoit Autin (Ben-wee O-tan).

Billiot got a silver loving cup, $200 cash and a promise of a part in a motion picture featuring the life of Lafitte, the pirate who brought his booty to New Orleans through the many bayous of this section.

The third boat to finish was that of Lucien Soulet (Soo-lay) and fourth was Etienne (A-tay-ann) Billiot, father of the winner.

The younger Billiot said he would be very glad to accept a movie contract but grinningly explained he didn't expect to become any Robert Taylor.

When the race was over and the tumult and shouting died, the tall, wiry and bronzed "Bee-yo" was nervous but not tired. In fact, he was not even breathing hard after the four-mile grind.

The Rev. Father E. J. Gubler, pastor of the Barataria church, pronounced a benediction just before the start of the race. The Rev. Father O. L. Abell, of Loyola university, New Orleans, was official time-keeper. Father Abell said Adam averaged about 57 strokes to the minute compared with 50 last year.

The pirogue derby, which evolved from a discussion in a barroom between a New Orleans newspaper columnist and an attorney, and has now become one of the greatest of bayou holidays, attracted contestants from as far as Houma, La., which is about 50 miles from Lafitte.

The "Verdins," "Crappells," "Dufienes," "Encalades" and "Coberts," (pronounced Co-bear) lined the bayou on both sides and cheered their relatives on. One or two were swamped by backwash but righted their pirogues and continued in the race.

Besides the $200 cash and the loving cup other prizes included a live calf, cases of liquor, a gallon or so of mosquito spray, whole hams, cases of beer, merchandise orders, about 60 pounds of candy, cigars, a life preserver, a case of pork and beans, a large can of cookies and bottles of ketchup.

The winner said he intended to use his cash award to buy a trawl boat. Questioned as to what he would do with a trawl boat brought only shrugs and a non-committal "anything."

COTTON

New Orleans

NEW ORLEANS, May 1.—(AP)—Cotton was quiet today and business was limited to evening up transactions for over-the-week-end.

After an easy opening the market recovered, but encountered a wave of selling near the end and closed easy at net declines of 11 to 15 points.

Although Liverpool cables were favorable there was some long liquidation at the start and prices slid off 1 to 7 points.

After the offerings were absorbed a slight demand brought the price level up 2 to 6 points over the previous close.

The long distance weather forecast for next week was construed as favorable to the new crop and holders of cotton rushed to liquidate near the close and active months traded off to new lows for the day.

Final prices were at the bottom with July at 12.76, Oct. at 12.62, Dec. 12.72, Jan. 12.72 and March 12.75.

The weather map showed most of the eastern section of the belt was rainy, but the western portion was reported dry.

Exports today were 4,640 bales.

Cotton futures closed easy at net declines of 11 to 15 points.

NEW YORK STOCKS

By Victor Eubank

NEW YORK, May 1.—(AP)—Quiet strength was displayed in parts of today's stock market but many issues fell back after yesterday's sharp ascent.

Selected oils, farm implements and specialties trudged upward for gains of fractions to 1 or more points. Steels, however, gave ground easily.

Dealings were slow throughout as traders displayed more than the usual amount of discretion in extending commitments. There was some week-end profit selling, but this was absorbed fairly well in most instances.

Wall Street had an idea the snapback of Friday may have been a bit overdone in view of further possible complicaitons abroad on London's settlement date next Thursday. Offering from overseas were small. In fact a few buying orders from this source was reported.

Transfers were in the neighborhood of 550,000 shares.

Highly favorable corporation statements were plentiful, but some questioned whether the earnings picture would be so bright in the last half of the year.

United States government securities were unable to progress and other bonds did little either way. Commodities were uneven.

Pointing higher during most of the brief session—some slipped in the final few minutes—were Standard Oil of N. J., Texas Corp., Houston Oil, Midcontinent Petroleum, Socony Vacuum, Barnsdall, Skelly Oil Continental Oil, Shell Union Oil, J. I. Case, Deere, Oliver Farm, International Harvester, Illinois Central, Northern Pacific, Atlantic Coast Line, Peoples Gas, Chrysler, Electric Auto-Lite, Phelps Dodge, International Nickel, American Telephone, National Supply, Eastman Kodak and Worthington Pump.

Lower tendencies were shown by U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Republic, General Motors, Goodyear, Montgomery Ward, Sears Roebuck, North American, Electric Power & Light, Howe Sound, American Smelting, Anaconda, Seaboard Oil, Westinghouse, General Electric, N. Y. Central, Santa Fe, Pennsylvania and Southern Pacific.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, May 1.—(AP)—Led by contracts calling for delivery of new domestic wheat two months hence, the wheat market continued to advance early today.

Weather maps gave no indication of needed moisture relief in Kansas and Oklahoma, where crop prospects in many sections were reported to be diminishing.

Opening 1-8 higher to 1-2 lower, May 1.31 1-4 to 3-8, July 1.19 1-4 to 1-2, wheat deliveries soon rose above the previous close.

Corn started 1-8 to 1 cents higher, May 1.33 to 33 1-4, July 1.19 1-4 to 1/2 but later turned lower.

Wheat closed 1-8 to 7-8 higher than yesterday's finish, May 1.32 3-8 to 1.32 1/2, July 1.19 7-8 to 20, and corn was 1/2 to 2 1-4 lower, May 1.30 1-4 to 1.31, July 1.17 1-2 to 5-8.

JUDGE RELEASES ACCUSED WOMAN

Says Suspicious Circumstances Do Not Warrant Holding Mrs. Boutwell

LAUREL, Miss., May 1.—(AP)—Mrs. Winnie Boutwell, Jasper county widow charged with accessory to murder in connection with the death of her husband, Walter Boutwell, was at liberty today following a habeas corpus hearing held before Chancellor B. Amis, Sr.

She had been in jail here two weeks, having been arrested by Sheriff Lee Williams of Jasper county a few days after he had arrested Sherman "Bull" Sims and charged him with the murder.

"There are some suspicious circumstances, but you can't hold a person on suspicion," said Judge Amis in granting the petition of Mrs. Boutwell's counsel that she be released.

Sims is still in jail here and no plans for a habeas corpus in his behalf or for a preliminary hearing have been disclosed. During questioning by the officers shortly after the arrests had been made, Sims admitted having owned the sawed-off shotgun with which Boutwell was killed but claimed he had sold it to Mrs. Boutwell.

During more than an hour's cross-examination by District Attorney Homer Currie of Raleigh at the habeas corpus hearing Mrs. Boutwell said she believed her husband shot himself.

The coroner's jury returned a verdict of suicide but Sheriff Williams refused to accept it, declaring he did not see how Boutwell could have walked eighteen feet from an outhouse where the shooting was alleged to have occurred, to the place where his body was found in the yard with the shotgun under one arm.

Diagnosing Your Printing

The printer is to the Advertising profession what the Doctor is to the medical profession. In many instances a large firm's sales force is made incomplete without the aid of printing—you and your salesmen may be successful in your personal contacts, but, successful as you may be, printed salesmanship, is, and should be, a firm's greatest ally. For, while you are pounding pavements or ringing door bells, or making telephone calls your printed message should be entering homes and reaching desks—paving the way for your personal appeal or keeping 'em sold on your wares.

We are experts in our line, give us an opportunity to diagnose your printing needs and requirements and watch results.

COTTON PROBLEMS TO BE DISCUSSED

Louisiana Cooperative Association To Meet At Alexandria, May 10

All phases of the cotton problem as its affects producers in Louisiana will come up for discussion when the Louisiana Cotton Cooperative association meets in annual session at Alexandria May 10. The session will be held in the Bolton High school auditorium. Farmers from all over the state will attend the meeting.

Speakers from the ranks of the cotton cooperatives, as well as leaders in other farm organizations and education groups, will be featured.

Invitations have gone out to members of the association and, in addition to farm bureau members, county control committees, county agents and Smith-Hughes teachers. A section of the program will be devoted to the operations of the Louisiana association as well as its national sales body, the American Cotton Cooperative association. This discussion will be headed by E. F. Creekmore, general manager of American Cotton Cooperative association.

Norris C. Williamson, president of the Louisiana association, will preside at the sessions, opening at 10 o'clock and extending through the noon hour. There will be no general afternoon session.

Other speakers who will be featured are J. W. Bateman, director of extension, Louisiana State university; S. M. Jackson, Smith-Hughes supervisor for Louisiana; Miss Mary Mims, extension sociologist for Louisiana; H. F. Chalkley, president of the Louisiana farm bureau federation, and others.

Invitations have been extended to F. W. Spencer, assistant extension director; Harry F. Kapp, secretary-treasurer of the Louisiana farm bureau; Carl Kemmerly, organization specialist for L. S. U.; Major H. D. Lee, dean of the school of agriculture, L. S. U.; Dr. C. T. Dowell, director of experiment stations, L. S. U.; Harry F. Wilson, Louisiana state commissioner of agriculture, G. A. Gerdes, cotton ginning specialist, and others.

"We are attempting to bring to the attention of our members, not only the status of cooperative marketing of cotton in the state of Louisiana, but discussions dealing with the general farm program in Louisiana," Sam Bass, general manager, said.

Mr. Bass stated that more than 16,700 producers delivered cotton to the association last season and that their deliveries account for the Louisiana association handling a little better than 24 per cent of the cotton grown in the state. This, stated Mr. Bass, is in line with the records over several years, showing that farmers of the state handle around 25 per cent of all of the cotton produced in the state through their own organization.

Appetite Restored, System Regulated

Rheumatic Pains Conquered By Gly-Cas Too; Stomach And Kidneys In Fine Condition; Eats And Sleeps Good, Like A Different Person.

"Gly-Cas is the first and only medicine I have ever found that did just what it claimed to do," said Mrs. H. L. Weems, Route No. 5 Lubbock, Tex. "For the past four years I had been miserable with a bad case of stomach trouble. After each meal I would suffer dreadfully with gas and bloating regardless of my diet. I soon lost my appetite for eating meant suffering for me. I would have dizzy spells, was badly constipated and my system was clogged with poisons and try as I might I could find nothing to help me. Rheumatism finally settled over my body and my hands and legs felt as if they had 'gone to sleep.' I had continual night risings and a good night's sleep was impossible. But all these years of poor health were soon to end when I gave Gly-Cas a fair trial—for it took hold of my case as if it were made for me alone."

"Gly-Cas actually accomplished what I had thought impossible," she continued. "For the first time in years I can now sit down to a meal and enjoy it. And never have any fear of the after distress of gas and bloating and the awful pains I had in my stomach. My appetite is good, bowels regulated, dizzy spells are over and all those poisons have been eliminated from my system. That rheumatism has gone too, nerves quieted and I sleep fine the entire night through. It is wonderful what a change a single medicine can make in one's health and it is a blessing to feel so well again since I have taken Gly-Cas."

Gly-Cas is sold by Phoenix Drug Co., 346 DeSiard St., and by all leading drug stores in surrounding towns. (Adv.)

TO PRESIDE

Norris C. Williamson (above), of Lake Providence, president of the American Cotton Cooperative association and president of the Louisiana Cotton Cooperative association, will preside over annual sessions of the latter organization at Alexandria May 10.

MAUD S. GILL MAY DAY QUEEN

Northeast Center Student Crowned By Dean Caldwell At Ball

Ending an extremely close race for the honor of being named May day queen of the Northeast Center of Louisiana State university, Miss Maud S. Gill outdistanced her competitors at the polls and was duly crowned by Dean S. A. Caldwell at a ball held in the college gymnasium. Her four maids were Miss Jean Page, Miss Katherine Smith, Miss Virginia Husted and Miss Mildred Johnson.

In competition with Miss Gill for the honor of queen were the following: Jean Page, Katherine Smith, Mildred Johnson, Nibby McKenzie, Dot Lavely, Lucille Brown, Frenchie Edwards and Kate Penuell.

Students cast their ballots for queen up until 3:45 p.m. Friday, but the result was kept a secret until the coronation took place at the ball.

Campaign managers were busily engaged in behalf of their favorite candidates. Cards were distributed among students, blackboards were covered with a recital of outstanding qualities of candidates, and posters were displayed similarly throughout classrooms.

POPPY SALE TO BE HELD ON SATURDAY

Ninety-five thousand poppies have been manufactured at the United States Veterans' hospital in Alexandria for the American Legion and auxiliary for the annual memorial poppy sale which will be held as a "tag day" on Saturday, May 8.

The L. B. Faulk post and auxiliary have established a quota of 2,000 to be sold on this day.

Veterans are paid a penny for each poppy made. Allowing for cost of material, postage and other incidentals, the average net receipts are $25 a thousand.

The net proceeds are used by the local organizations to carry on child welfare and hospital work locally. As the net proceeds are used here, the community derives benefit from the sale.

Mrs. C. L. Mengis will have charge of the sale and will be assisted by members of the post and auxiliary.

If you have a daughter or a guest who wants to help, she can be really a help instead of a hindrance. With the D-i-v-i-d-e-d Top, you both have plenty of elbow room. You're out of each other's way and yet, facing each other, you can talk without looking away from your work.

No Reaching Over Hot Burners

How many times have you burned a wrist, scorched an arm—or come near setting a sleeve on fire—trying to reach something on a back burner? The D-i-v-i-d-e-d Top prevents all that. Using all four burners at once, everything is within easy reach across the free center table. And naturally handles over the center table do not become heated.

Joyous Days Ahead For The Nautical Minded As Boating Season Arrives

Thoughts Centering Upon Vacation Trips

Many Persons Touring In Trailers; Others Will Soon Be Off On Voyages To Foreign Lands

By Eve Bradford

MAYTIME and all the world is on the move. We shed like an old cloak everything that reminds us of the "winter of our discontent." The fragrance of Mother Earth's bosom is everywhere and tired faces of men and women soften and relax. Everyone is planning to be off somewhere on a springtime jaunt. The fortunate few are off on Mediterranean cruises or South American tours, and those who cannot go so far from home are turning gypsy. If we could recapture our student days we might pen a shrewd thesis on "The Influence of the Trailer." Daily now we can see them trailing through the city to the north after a season of warm sunshine in the south. The gypsy-minded envy those fortunate enough to own a trailer and go where fancy dictates now that Maytime is here.

Helen Sherrouse finds one of life's greatest joys at the nonce, in buying appropriate clothes for the Mediterranean cruise she and John are planning for this month. Light, summery clothes for shipboard when they sail to the Ise of Capri and face the hot winds of Africa and Egypt. Helen is sending, by express, the warm clothes necessary after they disembark at Paris for the tour of Germany, Switzerland and England. The cold, damp fogs of London necessitate warm woolens.

The gypsy spirit prompted the Carl McHenrys to drive to Farmerville last Sunday morning to join the James A. Noes, who left Monroe the day before for a week-end trip on board their houseboat, the Noe's Ark. So winding and uncertain was the course of the river that it kept the Noe's Ark pilot constantly on the alert.

Boating days are here again. With prows pointing up the river and hulls gleaming white on the dancing water, comes the realization that summer has fairly begun, and joyous days are ahead for the nautical minded.

Mrs. P. L. Perot, arriving too late to be seated with the guests during the luncheon for the delegates attending the medical society auxiliary meeting last Tuesday, asked a gentleman standing near the door to find her a seat at one of the tables. Imagine her chagrin when she was told rather haughtily, "Madam, I am an entertainer, not a waiter."

Champagne will flow freely the night before Doris Beaman is married. She confiscated the case of "bubble water" won by Dr. Oswald Cosby at the ball on the Cherokee terrace of the Frances hotel last Wednesday night. He was fortunate enough to draw the lucky ticket for the case of champagne given away by the hosts of the evening, members of the Ouachita Parish Medical society. Dr. Cosby will be a member of the Beaman-Vaughan wedding party, so he will not lose out after all.

Love may be a thing of sighs and moonbeams, but getting married has its workaday problems, according to Doris, who is now spending every available moment in the shops looking for trousseau clothes so that she might live up to her reputation for being one of the best groomed members of the younger set. A veritable cloudburst of May showers, teas, luncheons and dinners will soon descend on these June brides, including not only Doris but Suzanne Hirsch and Frances Stroud.

The visit of Marie Windes in the city last week brought to mind how much she is missed in the haunts of society since she left two years ago for New Orleans. She is looking exceptionally fine and has grown to love the Crescent City—and no wonder, for she has acquired a group of friends who dance and dine and play contract and go off for little week-end giros to the coast. Marie's son Bobby has a three-masted schooner on Lake Pontchartrain which he handles expertly. If it were otherwise, members of the family wouldn't enjoy sailing with him over the bounding main.

Garden enthusiasts have been given an added stimulus with the activities pertinent to the state garden convention in this city May 12, 13. It has been rather fascinating to learn of the number of women who will take an active part in the entertainment of the guests. A barbecue at the Rowland country home will be one of the highlights of the program. This home, far removed from the main highway, is a tangled wildwood with roses everywhere.

Lida Oliver came home from Hot Springs with a handsome golf trophy presented to her during the dinner hour at the Arlington hotel by the executive board of the American Bankers association for her low score in the tournament arranged for the ladies who accompanied their husbands to Hot Springs for the annual spring meeting.

We doff our hat to those responsible for electing Maud S. Gill queen of May at Northeast Center. No one is better qualified to grace the flowery throne of May than this lovely girl who has inherited all the graces. Not only is she beautiful and charming but possesses an extraordinary intellect. Often we have heard friends remark on the great love between Maud S. and her brother Sydney. They are constant companions, sharing joys and sorrows and finding their greatest delight in each other's company.

Clothing Customs Greatly Changed

Time, they say, marches on.

To get a chuckle, maybe a thrill, perhaps a tear and almost certainly a stimulus to mental activity, pick up at random a file of old newspapers. Read one through and you will find how far we have traveled. You will find how our customs have changed, especially in the matter of dress.

One of the best things we miss—and halfway regret—is that nowadays nobody seems to have a "Sunday best." Such as the best linen tablecloth; the best china and silver and of course, the best dress.

Youngsters of today, romping from coast to coast in slacks, will have no happy memories, no tender reaction to fine china, no knowledge of the "best black silk." The best we have is used every day and in our wardrobe hangs no "best black silk."

Many of us today look back with pleasant memory to our mother's or grandmother's "best black silk.' The second best would do for most occasions. But the best black silk had a sort of dignity to it that all the fine dresses of today are unable to attain. Nothing shoddy from the skin out, could be put on with that best black silk. Real lace or fine French embroidery formed the neckwear. Very extravagant, almost immodest women, had a "cascade" on the skirt. But it often caused talk.

Ah, the innocent pride of the whole family in mother's best black silk! When the best dress started on its way out it was often trimmed with all sorts of contrasting fabrics to enliven it and keep friends from recognizing it. The fashion sharks had commenced to perk up so it became necessary to have more frequent changes. At this time passementerie became popular and many an old Sunday best was transformed by the use of this trimming.

Today there is no "Sunday best." Women are smartly attired whenever they appear in public. Not being made of the heavy, rich, firmly woven materials of our grandmother's day, clothes soon grow shoddy and are thrown to the discard. Scarcely, if ever, do we hear of dresses being made over. The shops are filled with dresses priced so low that a new one costs less than the passementerie that changed the old best black silk into "second best," in days gone by.

Auxiliary Members At Rayville Meeting

President Lena M. Morrow headed a delegation from the Rodney J. Hobbs auxiliary, Veterans of Foreign Wars, who attended the meeting of the auxiliary to Christian-Phillips post, Rayville, Monday night. Members who accompanied President Morrow were Mrs. Christine Brown, Mrs. Clara Ferrington, Mrs. Althea Vallery, Miss Dolores Brown, Mrs. Sleet B. Leonard, Mrs. Fannie Sanders, Mrs. Zola B. Smith, Mrs. Pearl Madsen and Mrs. Aline B. Hunt.

The Rayville auxiliary will soon celebrate the first anniversary of its organization. It is justly proud of the progress made during the first year.

A bulletin issued by national headquarters states that plans are being inaugurated by the Rodney J. Hobbs post to conduct an annual series of Armistice night dances throughout the national organization of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, for the benefit of the V. F. W. national home at Eaton Rapids, Mich.

All auxiliaries, and especially the chairmen of the national home fund committees will be interested in this plan which will be presented to the national encampment in the form of a resolution when the encampment convenes at Buffalo, N. Y., next September.

NO. 2 OF A SERIES ABOUT OUR STOR

"Just What a Home Might Mean"

Did you ever stop and think
Just what a home might mean?
From reception room to kitchen sink,
It could mean a perfect dream.

A thing of beauty, a joy forever,
A place in which to live,
Ties of love which no human could sever,
And all the riches which life could give.

Home!—the soft caress of a woman's hand,
The first spoken words from a baby's lips;
Home!—a house and a bit of flower-decked land,
A shower of gifts from God's finger tips,

An open hearth, a blazing log,
A shaded lamp with its soft rose glow,
A peaceful pipe, a sleeping dog,
A crooning song from a radio.

Give me four walls and a shingled roof,
A farm, or a city lot,
And I'll make a home beneath that roof,
A God created-beautiful spot!

Northeast Center Elects May Queen

The annual election of Northeast Center's May queen and maids of honor was climaxed Friday night with the announcement of the queen and her court and the coronation of the queen by Dean S. A. Caldwell. The results of the election were not announced until the time of the coronation at 12:01 a.m., May 1, at the annual May day dance of the sophomore and freshman classes.

Last week at an assembly of all Northeast Center students ten gals were nominated as candidates for the honor. Much interest was manifested in the election up until its close at 3:45 Thursday afternoon. There was a keen spirit of friendly rivalry prevalent through the contest.

Miss Maud S. Gill, popular young sophomore of Monroe was elected May queen. Miss Gill is one of the girls who was previously chosen one of Northeast Center's most beautiful girls for the college yearbook, and she is very active in extra-curricular activities. The four girls receiving the subsequent highest number of votes were maids of honor. They were: Miss Jeanne Page of Bastrop, Miss Virginia Husted of Monroe, Miss Katherine Smith of Monroe, and Miss Mildred Johnson of Monroe.

The coronation took place in the flower banked gymnasium where a throne was reared 'neath myrid colored electrics. The maids of honor and their escorts entered to the accompaniment of orchestral music and took their places on either side of the throne. The entrance of the queen was the occasion for considerable applause.

Dean Caldwell gave a most engaging talk and later crowned the queen by placing a wreath of white carnations on her head. Each of the five maids carried arm bouquets of pink radiance roses.

Program Completed For Convention Of Louisiana Federated Garden Clubs

Group Will Meet In Monroe On May 12-13

Local Committees Appointed To Entertain Guests; Boat Ride Among Events Being Planned

With every garden lover preparing for the state convention of the Louisiana Federated Garden clubs in this city on May 12-13, one is reminded that the most cultured people of ancient times had gardens. The hanging gardens of Babylon were forerunners of modern endeavors to turn prosaic backyards into beautiful garden spots. The rock gardens, modest little pools and cultivation of seasonal flowers reflects man's "back-to-nature" craving.

Man, the savage, had to fight for food, shelter and clothing. With the passing years, leisure crept into his life. With leisure came time to plan and then gradually came the craving for permanent abodes. Years passed, but in the intervals huts became houses, writing was born, gardens were planned and culture started.

Pride of ownership, temporary or permanent, usually begets pride in appearance. Nothing enhances the appearance and the value of a home more than beautiful trees, landscaped yards and luxuriant shrubbery. The crowning glory of a home is a garden, and there is no yard, however small, that cannot be made into cozy rendezvous where the owners can have the privacy they crave.

This is the one great lesson for which Monroe home owners are indebted to the garden clubs.

On May 12 garden lovers from every section of the state will gather in Monroe for the state convention. An idyllic setting, the Virginia hotel roof garden, has been selected for the two-day sessions with a dinner on the roof and coffee in the garden climaxing the pleasures of the first day.

At 2 p.m. on Wednesday, May 12, the state board members, state chairman and presidents of clubs will be entertained on board the Noe's Ark. Mrs. James A. Noe, Mrs. Hunter Thatcher and Mrs. Cecile Parker will act as hostesses.

The flower exhibit will take place from 4:30 to 6 p.m. Exhibits will be arranged by the Monroe Furniture company's Heirloom shops, the Palace, the Durrett Hardware and Furniture company's Williamsburg galleries. Members of Fort Miro chapter of the D. A. R. will have charge of costuming.

A reception will be held on the roof at 7 p.m. Mr. H. Morrison of Fort Worth will be the guest speaker.

Members of the local garden club will be hostesses at breakfast in the Cameo room of the Virginia hotel at 8:30 Thursday morning. The business session will be opened at 9:30 with Mrs. William Lake, Mrs. Henry Trigg and Miss M. McLain and Mr. and Mrs. H. Morrison, of Fort Worth, as guest speakers.

At 1 p.m., a barbecue will take place at the country home of Mrs. T. C. Rowland.

The tour of gardens will commence at 2:30, with Mrs. Marion Learned's studio-garden as one of the points of interest. The federal and state highway plan of beautification on highway 80 will be of interest to those who make this tour.

Members of the various committees for the convention are: Registration (on Wednesday): Mrs. Henry Haas, Mrs. Herbert Millsaps, Mrs. Parker McComb, Mrs. Phil Dunning, Mrs. T. L. Announcement has just been made of the marriage of Miss Rupert Hughes, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Hughes of Dodson and DeWitt Stinson of Jonesboro which was solemnized on Thursday night, April 29, in the home of Rev. and Mrs. Otto L. Hughes of Winnfield, Rev. Hughes officiating.

Mrs. Stinson is a graduate of the Dodson High school and popular with the younger social set. Mr. and Mrs. Stinson will reside in Monroe.

Mr. Robert McGimsey of Alexandria will leave Tuesday for Schroon Lake, N. Y., where he will spend the summer at the Oscar Seagle Colony of Music in the Adirondack mountains. His mother, Mrs. R. H. McGimsey, will accompany him as far as Monroe, where she will visit Mr. and Mrs. C. V. McGimsey before going to Muskogee, Okla., to spend some time with her daughter, Mrs. J. S. McCoy, remembered as Louise McGimsey. Mrs. McGimsey plans to join her son at Schroon lake in August.

Crew lake, one of the most popular fishing resorts in this section, continues to attract groups of young folks who enjoy not only the fishing and boating, but the privilege of picnicking on the grassy slopes.

The birthday anniversary of Miss Frances Jewel Youngblood was the inspiration for a fishing and boating party at Crew lake last week, with a picnic supper the highlight of the occasion.

Enjoying the pleasures of the day, in addition to the guest of honor, were: Misses Margaret Butler, Amye Malone, Tiney Verrette, Esther Verrette, Sadie Siegner, Virginia Young, Peggy Young, Catherine Young, Red Fuller, Adrian Smith, Hiawatha Franks, Bruce Pepper, Ammon Salter, Glen Young, and Mrs. A. M. Young.

Mrs. L. W. Mobley's entertainment of the Married People's Card club was a charming, informal affair of last week at the Episcopal parish house.

Gift flowers of pronounced beauty created a colorful background for the placement of the card tables, covered with crisp linen and adorned with low crystal vases of garden flowers for the serving a two course supper.

Cards were introduced later and gifts presented for high scores to Mrs. G. P. Stubbs, Mrs. Minnie Ruffin, Mr. Albert Horuff, and Mr. R. B. Frizzell.

The presence of two out-of-town guests, Mrs. J. Whitney Hall of Chicago, Mrs. Katherine Oswald of Oregon, created additional interest.

The Evangeline country, famed in story and song, was featured at the twentieth biennial convention of the National Federated Music clubs in Indianapolis, Ind., last week.

Members of the Louisiana Federated Music clubs attending the convention wore the blue sateen frocks with white aprons and caps reminiscent of the costumes worn by Evangeline in the land of Acadia.

The music club chorus of Baton Rouge arranged an Evangeline booth at the headquarters hotel in Indianapolis, served as its hostesses, explained the numerous articles on display there, distributed booklets about Baton Rouge and postcards picturing the state capitol, and registered the several hundred visitors who called at the booth. The Acadian exhibit included books and articles concerning Acadian history, hand-made rugs, the spinning wheel loaned by Mrs. A. K. Gordon, two tufted bedspreads made by Acadian women, pictures of old Louisiana homes and moss-hung trees. All these articles were repacked and arrived on the train with the singers. One trunk returned quite empty, for it was the particular trunk which had gone laden with Spanish moss to hang about the booth. Mrs. B. B. Fortinberry, president of the chorus, supervised the details of the excursion and even in Indianapolis arranged such items as the lighting effect to be used on the stage while the chorus, clad in its blue frocks with white, lace-trimmed aprons and caps, sang and was applauded. Mr. David H. Piller, director, accompanied the chorus.

Mrs. E. S. Girault, who is considered championship material in state golfing circles, will enter the state tournament in Baton Rouge on Monday. Mrs. Claude F. Reynaud, president of the Louisiana Women's Golf association, is supervising arrangements for the tournament. All the play will be at the University Golf club course and for the five days of the tournament luncheon will be served the players at the clubhouse. On Friday afternoon the presentation tea will be held there, when all the trophies will be presented.

The activity of Dan Cupid inspires a little jaunt back into history where one finds that the first bridal shower was given not by a hostess but by a host. It wasn't the matron of honor and the bridesmaids who set the social ball a-rolling, but the best man and the groomsmen. Guests at the first shower were not close friends of the blushing bride, but the cronies of the bridegroom.

It seems that years ago in Holland there lived a young miller who could press his suit as well as he could grind a bag of meal. And so he persuaded a rosy-cheeked mejuffouw to murmur "yes." But when it came to speaking to papa—that was different! For papa had other plans and they concerned a rich man.

So, to make a long story short, the miller's friends did a lot of whispering and one evening they strolled over to the house of the greedy father and his obedient daughter in a procession, each bearing a gift. And so papa couldn't hold out against public opinion any longer and he said, "Bless you, my children," in his very best Dutch, and the miller and his bride lived happily ever after.

With no more ceremony than that did men launch a custom which has become more beautiful with the years. By Shakespeare's time the women were making the shower arrangements.

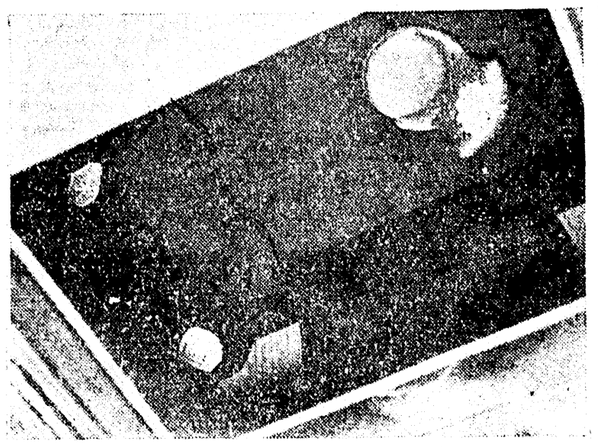
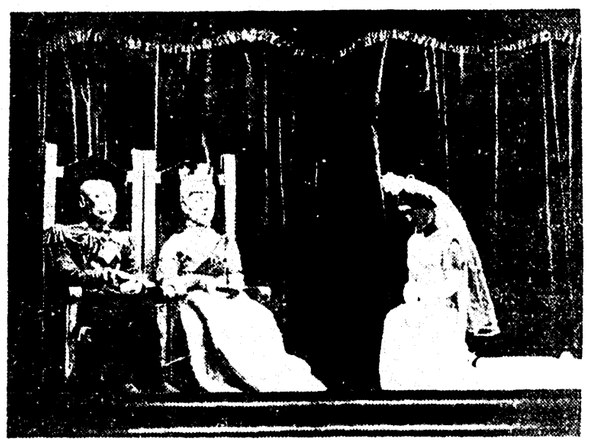
PARLOR THAT WAS ANTE-ROOM TO PALACE.—This old-fashioned Baltimore parlor in her mother's boarding house was Wallis Warfield's preparation for the grandeurs she has since experienced when, as fiancee of Edward VIII she had access to Buckingham palace, St. James' palace and other seats of British royalty.



ENTRY HERE HARD AS AT COURT OF ST. JAMES.—Antecedents, character, attainments—all these questions had special import when a Baltimorean wanted to live at the boarding house of Wallis Warfield's mother. Pictured is the view of prospective roomers the landlady got through the sitting room transom.



MRS. SIMPSON BOWS BEFORE ROYAL IN-LAWS.—Wax models of the late King George V of England, Queen Mary and Mrs. Simpson show visitors to the Wallis Warfield museum how the Baltimore belle was presented at court in Buckingham palace. A 50-cent fee lets the public inspect the former boarding house.

Music Guild To Hold Tournament

The piano tournament conducted by the National Guild of Music Teachers will be held on May 13, 14, 15. On the opening day, May 13, students will play in the annex of the First Methodist church. The following days students will play at Northeast Center.

Comments from a judge:

"I want to take this opportunity to tell you that the guild is doing a fine work. The youth of the land is appreciating it as well as the teachers concerned. I had the privilege of acting as judge at the Abilene tournament and was astounded at the result. I heard over 250 children play a wide assortment of romantic and modern music in an acceptable manner. This, too, when we thought that the piano was losing cast and that it was a waste of time to attempt to prepare students for the teaching profession.

"I was only one of three who judged as many as 1 in the same tournament, and when I thought of the project as nation-wide, this judge came home in a thoughtful mood. Another thing that impressed me was the splendid grade of teaching that was being done by those who entered students. They came from cities, rural communities, and what we sometimes are inclined to call the 'sticks,' yet there was not a great deal of difference in the preparation of these students. Yes, the guild is doing a fine work, and has my earnest support and wish for continued success."

Mrs. J. R. Ramey and daughter Maralyne left last week for St. Louis where they will visit Mrs. Ramey's sister, Mrs. H. E. Thain, for two weeks. They were accompanied by Mrs. Ramey's mother, Mrs. H. M. Branch, who will remain in St. Louis several weeks at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Thain.

YOU KNOW those fine screen card tables that lend such a decorative note to a room? Well, believe it or not, I found them yesterday at Dixie Bedding & Furniture company for $2.75 up. Yes they are entirely of wood—and cardboard or composition. You'll love the scenes painted on them, I know, and will find it hard to make a choice from the hunting, Venetian and floral pictures. Frame and legs come finished in walnut. Can you think of any more acceptable gift for the June bride? Deliverys will be made in the city and suburbs without extra charge. Dixie always saves you 35% on purchases—so get wise—shop with Dixie.

ARE you looking for something unusual for a June bride? I only say "June" because the word with "bride" is so euphonious—she may be a May or July bride for that matter. The important part of this little item is the place where these distinctive gifts may be found. I visited Durrett's, 117 St. John street, a day or two ago and saw dozens of things that would delight the soul of any woman—things one doesn't find in other shops. Such glamorous pieces of nationally known sterling silver to full service or individual pieces . . . starting at $2.50. A variety of open stock imported and domestic china, beginning at $1.60, . . . Glassware galore . . . goblets, sherbets, wines and cocktails, luncheon sets and individual pieces. The bridal path is just the beginning of a long, happy trail, and Durrett's gifts will see them through every step of the way.

FUNNY, isn't it, that men have written odes to Grecian urns, nightingales and whatnot-have-you, but not a single line to a chocolate fudge cake? I wonder why. Chocolate fudge cake, you know, is generally considered men's favorite dessert and you'd think some one of the sterner sex would have waxed poetic before this. Well, I can't write lyrics, but I'll say this much, the man who made the chocolate fudge cake I have for you today has the soul of a poet. Why don't you get one for tomorrow's dessert or save it for Monday night supper. It is baked fresh every day at Jitney Jungle Bakery on North Fourth street, but will remain moist and delicious over night—if kept under lock and key. There is a new spread in their store called "Cheesenut," a sort of peanut butter, only it's chocolate. The children will love it.

SOME gallant gentleman of the old school desiring to flatter his lady must have coined the expression, "Time is kind to her." What a fallacy! Time isn't kind to anyone—least of all to a woman. But women are smart these days and know a lot of tricks to fool the old fellow with the hour glass. They watch their diets, they wear clothes that have facials and expert care given their hair. The hair is most important. Until a few years ago comparatively few women gave scientific care to their hair—a home shampoo with a miscellaneous soap was the rule. Now, with so many women in business and a multitude of time to spend on themselves, we find more and more going to hairdressers for permanent waves, hair permanent, hair lights and then expensive hair tonics and "set" our own hair. All this is to tell you of the Mary e Beauty Shop waving, cutting and tinting specialists will be at your service for the benefit of their knowledge and skill. Whether you desire a short or long permanent wave, it will be made to suit your face and as it should be. Phone 1776 and make your appointment. A dollar goes a long way.

I THINK I am getting about as much pleasure out of reading the list of entries in the Monroe Garden club's flower show as I will get out of the show itself. To that end I have a new request to make: Let's have a show about the kinds of flowers we have in our own gardens. Let's have a show that will be open to the children of the city. Let's have a show that will be open to the children of the city. Let's have a show that will be open to the children of the city.

RECENTLY I was in the mood for that sweet called "cobbler," so I went to the cafeteria and immediately that craving was satisfied. He says the apricot I had was with lemon sugar our mothers gave us when we were sick. It was really a soothing method of preventing "gastric disturbances and upsets." You'll find the medical man is right if you try the new . . . I noticed that the Ogy Bakery has placed on sale called MERINGUES which made its debut on our city yesterday. I can't . . . it plain . . . or as the medical man says . . . spread it with fresh strawberry jam or apple butter . . . sprinkled with cinnamon and there you have a feast for children . . . that is, if you grown-ups leave any in the cupboard.

GYPSY ROSE LEE BARES ALL!

Strip Queen Tells Naked Truth Of Her Past

By Paul Harrison
(NEA Staff Correspondent)

HOLLYWOOD, May 1.—A nudes-paperman interviews a burlesque queen:

Q.—Your name is Gypsy Rose Lee?

A.—Well, yes. Originally it was Rose Louise Hovick, but my public began to confuse it with "Havoc," so I changed it to Lee.

Q.—You were a strip-tease artiste, or "stripeuse," in burlesque, were you not?

A.—I was, but I'm not. I have discarded the habilliments of my earlier profession down to the last spangle and fragment of black lace. I now am a motion picture actress, and if you don't believe it you can ask the Hays office.

Q.—I have asked the Hays office, Miss Lee, and it says that you will not do any stripping for the screen.

A.—Say, listen!—these people are so cautious that I'm not even allowed to remove my coat for fear it will be misunderstood. The studio wouldn't let me fly out here from New York for fear the papers would say, "Gypsy Rose Lee takes off for Hollywood!"

Q.—How do you like the California climate?

A.—It's pretty warm for these long-sleeved, high-necked dresses that I have to wear. Of course, as the old adage had it, "There's never a slip twixt frock and hip." And all my clothes have zippers on them. Do you mind if I—

Q.—No, no—please, Miss Lee! I know that you were No. 1 on the list of Ten Best-Undressed Women of the American stage.

A.—You don't know the calf of it.

Keeps In Shape

Q.—How tall are you, Miss Lee?

A.—Five feet, 10 inches. And I weigh 126 pounds in my step-outs and my slippers. I always wear slippers.

Q.—Do you like sports?

A.—Yes, good sports. Now that I am no longer dancing, I shall have to take exercises to keep in shape. There was a lot of waist motion in burlesque dancing, anyway. It exercised everything except discretion. As for diet, I eat apples. Look at the way they reduced Eve.

Wearing her furs, jewelry, and a coy expression, Gypsy Rose Lee reveals why she is one of the Ten Best-Undressed Women of the American stage.

Q.—Would you be willing to reveal the secrets of your success, Miss Lee?

A.—Of course. I have nothing to conceal. A strip-tease artiste, or stripeuse, soon learns a few simple rules which govern sexcess. These are: "Never put off tomorrow what you can put off today"; "It's a great life if you weaken just a little"; and "Brevity is the soul of It."

Q.—That's fine, Miss Lee. I'm sure that many ambitious actresses will find those axioms helpful. Tell me, where do you live?

A.—I live in an apartment, but I am going to get a house on that new part of Sunset Boulevard known as the Sunset Strip.

Q.—Heh-heh, very appropriate indeed. Are you married or engaged, Miss Lee?

A.—Certainly not. No man ever has hid behind my skirts! There is a ridiculous story that I have been married and divorced, but I am neither green nor a grass widow.

Lucky Accident

Q.—Will you tell your fans how you happened to take up the art of strip-teasing?

A.—Well, I was playing in a little drama called "The Gay Nineties" and a terrible thing happened—a shoulder strap broke. These days I wouldn't care a wrap, but then I blushed. I blushed so hard that the other shoulder strap broke, and suddenly I realized that the audience was actually enjoying it.

One less thing led to another, and soon I was just standing there blushing all over. I had invented the strip-tease! Next day we changed the name of the show to "The Gay Nighties," and in a few months I had made my first million.

Q.—A million dollars, Miss Lee?

A.—Well, maybe not a million. Maybe you could say "barely a million." Anyway I did all right. The customers thronged to see me take off my clothes, and the money they paid was the price of omission. I never made an ostentatious show of my wealth, though. Nobody could accuse me of putting everything I had on my back.

* * *

Talented

Q.—Who is your favorite movie actress, Miss Lee?

A.—Well, Jean Harlow has certain qualities that I admire. But she doesn't work for Twentieth Century-Fox, does she? Maybe you'd better say Shirley Temple.

Q.—What do you think of Mae West?

A.—Mae West reminds me of the weakest link in a Vassar Daisy Chain.

Q.—What do you expect to accomplish in your cinema career, Miss Lee?

A.—Well, I will do anything that Darryl Zanuck wants me to do, but I modestly believe that I have varied talents.

Q.—For example—

A.—I could do straight drama because I believe in stark realism. I could do comedy because I have learned to grin and bare it. After all, a girl can't be both long-faced and broad-minded. Also I should be a fairly good imitator because I know how to do takeoffs.

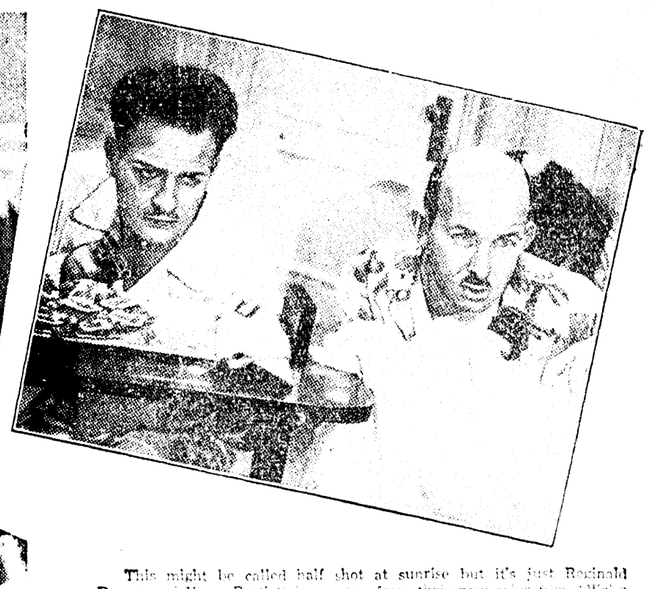
'Swing High, Swing Low' Shows At Paramount Today

Booth Tarkington's immortal story of two dauntless boys comes to the screen with Billy Mauch as Penrod and Harry Watson (center) as Sam. "Penrod and Sam" features Jackie Morrow as "Duke" and a cast of old favorites including Frank Craven and Spring Byington. Re-live your boyhood adventures at the Paramount Thursday and Friday.

The "jungle princess" always gets her man but this time she seems to be losing him. Fred MacMurray's reluctance to be gotten by Dorothy Lamour may be contributed to Carole Lombard. They are all in the Paramount's attraction today and Monday, "Swing High, Swing Low." Also featured is a brilliant supporting cast with Charles Butterworth, Jean Nixon and Harvey Stephens.



This might be called half shot at sunrise but it's just Reginald Denny and Vince Barnett in a scene from their new color film, "We're In the Legion Now!" which shows at the Capitol Friday. Featured are Esther Ralston and Eleanor Hunt.

Fans will have to look quick to get a glimpse of Georgie O'Brien, who starred in "Park Avenue Logger," second picture of the series. This scene is from "Park Avenue Logger," which plays at the Capitol today.

Introducing Sonja Henie, the silvery queen of the skates, in 1937's smash musical, "One In a Million" is at the Capitol Wednesday and Thursday. With Miss Henie are Don Ameche, Adolph Menjou, Arline Judge, Jean Hersholt, Ned Sparks and those irrepressible Ritz Brothers.

MacMurray, Lombard In Musical Hit

Stellar Cast Supports Two Stars In Romance With Music And Dancing

"SWING HIGH, SWING LOW," the dramatic romance with music which opened at the Paramount theater last night is a brilliant love story masterfully directed and high-lighted by good music, dancing and gorgeous settings.

It is also a picture with many pleasant surprises for movie-goers. Beautiful Carole Lombard, who is co-starred with Fred MacMurray, sings and dances in the film for the first time revealing talents which are certain to lift her even to greater heights of popularity. MacMurray plays the trumpet, an instrument upon which he is just as adept as he is with the saxophone, and Charles Butterworth exhibits his talents as a pianist.

But even though it is well-garnished with music and glamor, "Swing High, Swing Low" is essentially a love story. It deals with a night club entertainer in Panama who falls in love with a happy-go-lucky adventurer, played by MacMurray. Through her insistence that he attend to business she develops him from a mediocre trumpeter to an international sensation.

Fame goes to the man's head and he forgets Miss Lombard. But he is made to realize that without her he can neither play nor work and he goes back to her begging forgiveness.

The role of "the other woman" in "Swing High, Swing Low" is portrayed by Dorothy Lamour, the girl who captivated America in her first picture, "The Jungle Princess." Miss Lamour sings several songs in the picture and leads a beautiful chorus of dancers. She wears clothes exquisitely and is sure star-material in the making.

There are three musical numbers in "Swing High, Swing Low" which are in the big hit class. These are "Panamania," sung and danced by Miss Lamour, and "I Hear a Call to Arms" and "Then It Isn't Love," sung by Miss Lombard to the trumpet accompaniment by MacMurray.

The film was directed by Mitchell Leisen, who directed Miss Lombard and MacMurray in "Hands Across the Table." He was also responsible for "The Big Broadcast of 1937," one of the hits of the present season.

O'Brien In New Picture At Capitol

'Park Avenue Logger' Is Adventure Film With Thrilling Action

PICTURESQUE in its scenic background, powerful in its dramatic theme and nerve-tingling in its thrilling action, "Park Avenue Logger," George O'Brien's second George A. Hirliman production for RKO Radio release, comes to the Capitol theater today as one of the star's most interest-compelling outdoor vehicle in years.

David Howard was director of the current thriller, which is reported to be their best joint effort since becoming established several years ago as the foremost star-director team in the screen's outdoor picture field.

Adapted from the Saturday Evening Post story by Bruce Hutchison, "Park Avenue Logger" concerns the exciting adventures of a wealthy scion of a lumber millionaire, who convinces his father that he is an intellectual giant more interested in pursuing scientific phenomena than exercising his physical attributes. The deception works according to his highest expectations and he is shipped off to a logging camp where the father hopes he will make use of his brawn. The young man's daring exploits in the big tree country, where he satisfies his elemental passion for physical labor and battling, supply the thrilling events leading to a whirlwind finish.

Beatrice Roberts, former Ziegfeld girl and Atlantic City beauty contest winner, makes her debut as O'Brien's leading lady in the role of a courageous girl who struggles to save her invalid father's lumber business from failure at the hands of Willard Robertson and Ward Bond, character heavies portraying two conspiring foremen. Bert Hanlon, former vaudeville comic; Gertrude Short, popular film comedienne, and Robert E O'Connor have roles of importance.

The awe-inspiring beauty of the big timber belts in Oregon, Washington and northern California supply the outdoor background for most of the exciting action.

Everything You Eat, Wear and Use, Can Be Bought On Your Doorstep

The modern trend has imposed several changes on the daily life plan. If one were content to live carelessly one need not ever leave the home in order to procure those things which are a vital part of life. Peddlers galore roam the land . . . a new spirit is abroad. One may buy medicines . . . cosmetics . . . clothing . . . house furnishings . . . books . . . magazines . . . home study course and an endless array of things, right on the door step.

Even your groceries can be bought from the ITINERANT PEDDLER. He appears in all his glory, flanked with a selling talk that has a certain amount of appeal. He has been schooled in "psychology" by his sales manager . . . he has been taught to quickly find the weakness of his "prospect" . . . and how he does go about his work.

He will paint vivid and enticing pictures of how much BETTER are his wares . . . . he will undertake to compare his prices and convenient service with that offered by the local merchant . . . he will endeavor to convince you of the fact that HIS firm is a BIG one.

If you will just give ear to the recital of the peddler, he will sing a song of savings that will dazzle you. Then, Presto! he will begin to display his wares. You may be tempted to yield to the allure of his promises and his wares . . . you may decide to sign the order blank as you reach for your purse.

Buy!

do not yield because the peddler CAN NOT DELIVER what he promises you. There is nothing behind his talk or his wares. They are usually bought in job lots as factory rejections or what is more commonly known as "seconds." You want FIRST quality in every thing you buy and THAT is not available from a peddler.

Be polite, but firm in your refusal. After all it is YOUR money that is to be spent and you should at least have control of your own disbursements.

It is you who will use the merchandise . . . it is your disposition to be ruffled or pleased as the facts following the purchase may warrant.

You needn't be a merchandise expert to comprehend just how frail is the foundation upon which the peddler's business has been built. A limited buying power . . . no standing in the community . . . an unknown quantity who makes only one call and if he sells you he is far out of sight or reach within a few hours. Surely your better judgment forbids you trading under such circumstances and you should decide to throw your support to your local merchant.

THE CHIEF OF POLICE Gives Some Timely Advice

DON'T admit strangers to your home. They may be surveying your premises as the forerunner of a burglary.

DON'T sign any contracts which a stranger offers. This is the way some shrewd forgers have secured signatures.

DON'T hire servants until you have assured yourself through investigation that they are honest and bear good records.

DON'T cash checks for strangers.

You have no way of knowing their worth or worthlessness.

DON'T open your door wide to strangers. Place your foot behind it when it is partly opened. Daylight burglars have forced an entrance many times.

DON'T give strangers any information about yourself or about your neighbors.

HOME PROGRAM PROVIDES SAFE INVESTMENTS

Speculations Discouraged By Long-Term Insured Mortgage System

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Development of a national home-construction program, financed by private capital under terms of the federal housing administration's insured mortgage system, creates a condition in the real estate market where good real estate investments rather than good real estate speculations are available to the public, Administrator Stewart McDonald said today.

While the widespread adoption of the insured mortgage system has given further impetus to the factor of neighborhood control, thereby creating better environments and decreasing occupancy costs and removing to a great degree investment hazard from home ownership and mortgage investment, any ideas on the part of the public that such operations open a field for speculation are misguided, according to the administrator.

Reasonable Return

"Successful operation and ownership of real estate, financed under the insured mortgage system," he said, "is predicated entirely upon an expectation of a reasonable return from the direct services of the property, rather than from any form of real estate manipulation. The insured mortgage system makes such properties a successful investment, rather than a speculation, as it assures stability and a minimum of mortgage risk. These factors represent security. On the other hand, speculation does not require security but is inevitably related to the presence of risk."

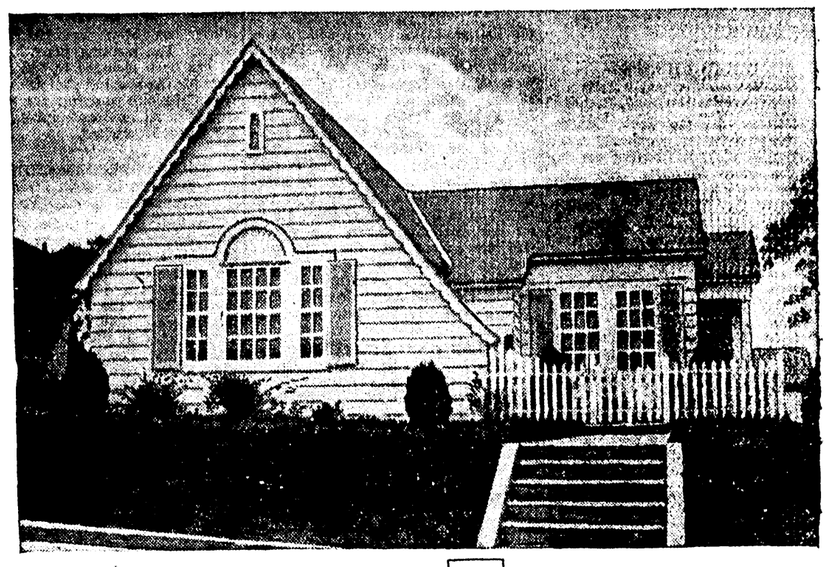
Elements of uncertainty which existed in out-moded forms of mortgage practice have been eliminated, he said, and have been replaced by a definite system of amortized mortgage payment—payable like rent, covering interest, principal, taxes and fire and other insurance. No longer, under the insured mortgage system, has the home purchaser any worry concerning payments on second mortgages. It is also unlikely for a home purchaser to find himself in an embarrassing financial predicament under the plan, as the limitations of the insured mortgage system tend to prevent a person buying a home beyond his means.

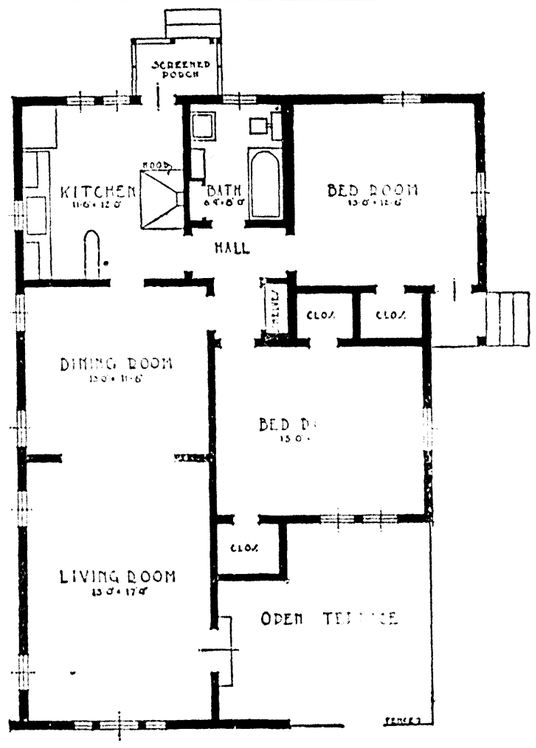
Stability Sought

"It should be thoroughly understood that, while the federal housing administration has promoted marked increase in the real estate market, it has in no way encouraged speculation. Every factor in the governmental insurance of mortgages has been evolved with the express purpose of increasing stability. In so doing, speculative factors have been discouraged to a great degree, if not completely eliminated.

"The requirement of a 20 per cent down payment and the long-term equal monthly plan of mortgage payment is further evidence of the check rein placed upon speculative and unsound mortgage practice. This, coupled with minimum property standards with which a home must conform to be eligible for mortgage insurance adds to this general stability. Therefore, sound building financed through a stable system of mortgage financing, produces a large field for investment, but scarcely can be considered a desirable field for speculative enterprise."

Texas Colonial





This pleasing five-room wood frame colonial cottage, with flagstone terrace, has been well designed to fit into a San Antonio, Tex., neighborhood, which is primarily a cottage development. The conveniently arranged house was designed and built by Mrs. Esther O'Hare. The total cost of the property, including a garage and other improvements, was $3,200. The land value was set at $800. The Federal Housing Administration insured a $3,000 mortgage on the property, to be repaid monthly, including interest, taxes, insurance, and service charges, of $33.20, over a period of 15 years. The house has an estimated rental value of $45.

BUILT-IN CLOSETS

Closets may be built in at either end of a blank wall in a large dining room, leaving an alcove for a buffet or serving table. Shelves or drawers may be provided for linen and silver and a space above for china.

Old-Fashioned Parlor Can Be Made Into An Attractive Room

An attractive and interesting living room has resulted from the modernization of the "parlor" of a generation ago.

Built in the period when houses containing gloomy rooms filled with massive furniture were the vogue, this parlor had dark woodwork, an ornate mantel, and walls covered with a drab paper of a large rambling design.

Money was obtained under the modernization credit plan of the federal housing administration to modernize the house, which became a charming home.

The oak mantel was removed and a modern fireplace in ivory and black marble substituted. All the woodwork was painted ivory, and the walls redecorated with a small, neat-figured paper extending all the way to the ceiling, which gave an appearance of height.

Modern electric fixtures replaced the heavy chandeliers, and electric outlets provided for lamps and radio. Private funds were used to purchase items not eligible for financing under the modernization credit plan, but necessary for the complete transformation of the room. Among these items were Venetian blinds hung at the windows and gay draperies, which added color to the room. New furniture in keeping with the transformed room was arranged in conversation groups, with tables and lamps placed conveniently.

CALIFORNIA CITY LEADS COUNTRY IN CONSTRUCTION

Early Year Gains Show Big Advance Over Same Period Last Year

WASHINGTON, D. C.—One- and two-family residential construction for January divulged wide gains over January a year ago, according to a federal housing administration analysis of figures supplied by the bureau of labor statistics. Los Angeles, seat of greatly accelerated home building during the past year, topped the two-million-dollar mark in this class of construction, while Detroit and New York both exceeded the million-dollar mark.

For the same month a year ago only Los Angeles was able to scale the million-dollar mark. New York was able to better, by a slight margin, the three-quarter-million level, while Detroit barely exceeded a half million dollars in one- and two-family dwellings.

Philadelphia Expands

While Philadelphia's figure of approximately $709,000 may not at first glance compare favorably with those of three cities mentioned above, the environs of the city have shown increasing activity in residental construction. This indicates a growing tendency to build in the suburban districts.

Lower Merion township and Upper Darby combined represent residential construction to the amount of $513,500 for January, 1937, in comparison to $173,800 for January, 1936, or a total comprehensive figure for Philadelphia and two important adjoining communities of $1,205,500, or over twice the amount for the corresponding month of 1936.

Cleveland Up

Cleveland, O., shows a substantial gain over last year, Cleveland Heights residential construction shows an increase of over five times the amount of 1936. Shaker Heights' gain is more than three times, making the total of Cleveland and its two suburban communities $566,800 for January, 1937, as against $186,700 for January, 1936.

The Boston metropolitan area has more than tripled its residential construction in the period indicated. With Milton, Belmont and Brookline, the combined figures reach $413,400 for January, 1937, or nearly twice those of January, 1936.

Great proportionate gains are shown in certain sections. In Chicago, as well as Wilmette, one of its suburbs, the amount of residential construction in January, 1937, is nearly nine times that of January, 1936.

Weather Bad

Shreveport, La., and St. Petersburg, Fla., show gains of over three times in residential construction as do many others of the 69 cities in the group.

Unfavorable weather conditions probably curtailed building activity in certain sections during January. The desire for suburban residence may offer reason for increase in smaller communities, while resumption of nearby industries may account for residential growth in other areas.

The first 10 cities in the list, with their totals, are:

Los Angeles, $2,686,716; Detroit, $1,889,953; New York, $1,781,850; Philadelphia, $692,000; Washington, D. C., $629,650; Chicago, $618,175; Miami, Fla., $581,793; San Diego, Calif., $494,670; San Francisco, $482,566; and Baltimore, $477,000.

WAY DOOR SWINGS INFLUENCES ROOM

The way a door swings on its hinges often makes a good deal of difference in the usability of the space around it. In planning rooms, whether the door should swing on the right or left-hand jamb should be carefully considered.

FHA INSURED HOMES IN HAWAIIAN ISLANDS

HONOLULU, T. H.—Construction has started on Hillcrest in Kaimuki, a subdivision of small homes. Each home will be built to meet federal housing administration requirements so they may be financed under the insured mortgage system.

SUMMARY GIVEN OF FHA EFFORTS

Flow Of Money From Private Funds Shows Gain Over Country

WASHINGTON, D. C.—The effects of the federal housing administration's efforts to improve the home-mortgage lending system of the country may be summarized as follows:

The volume of private funds used in home-mortgage loans increased substantially in 1936, as compared with 1935, the year when the mutual mortgage insurance plan was placed in operation and the home-mortgage market was definitely thawed out. The number of institutions making insured mortgage loans mounted from about 3,600 at the end of 1935 to 5,260 at the end of 1936, and the flow of funds from areas with surplus capital to areas requiring outside capital was expanded.

From the borrower's point of view, more general use of insured mortgages resulted, directly and indirectly, in a perceptible downward trend in interest rates in most sections of the country; in wider use of long-term amortization, which reduced the size of monthly payments and consequently the immediate burden of achieving debt-free home ownership; and in greater use of single first-mortgage loans up to 80 per cent of the value, the form of credit needed by a large proportion of families engaged in acquiring homes. The maximum yearly charge permitted on insured mortgage loans remained unchanged at 5 per cent interest computed on outstanding monthly balances, plus one-half of 1 per cent service charge and one-half of 1 per cent on the original principal amount for mutual mortgage insurance premium.

HEATING EQUIPMENT REQUIRES INSULATING

The importance of eliminating fire hazards in the home cannot be too greatly stressed. The heating equipment should be given particular attention to insure every protection against fire. It is advisable to insulate or screen all boilers, furnaces, and pipes; never pile ashes near combustible material; provide adequate clearance for steam pipes.

Adequate and efficient heating equipment is one of the many points checked by federal housing administration valuators in inspecting houses to determine their eligibility for insured mortgage financing.

Including millwork, flooring and labor in laying the floor . . . the cost is only 22.25%.

• Mr. & Mrs. Wisdom know that the place to save a few dollars in costs is NOT in the structural lumber. They want permanence . . . low maintenance cost . . . and lasting satisfaction . . . and they'll get them all by using Quality lumber.

• Know the advantages of Quality lumber by reading your copy of "Questions Before the House," and, be sure to insist on Quality Lumber when you build. Responsible dealers can easily supply it.

BUILDER OF HOME SHOULD CONSIDER WOMEN'S TASTE

Women are accredited with superior buying sense to men. They also control the spending of about 85 per cent of the family income. In purchasing a home, construction methods, usually interesting to men, do not ordinarily appeal to women, who much prefer to witness results and the finished product.

If a woman can actually see a labor-saving kitchen, a convenient laundry, adequate heating facilities, a splash-proof bathroom, a play room or workshop for the children, attractive well-decorated comfortable living rooms, her interest is thoroughly aroused.

The advantages of buying a home through a long-term insured mortgage retired by payments made from income appeal strongly to a woman's economic sense. Builders are wise to consider the housekeeper's reaction in planning and constructing homes for sale.

MODERN HOUSE PLAN UTILIZES BASEMENT

In building or buying a home with a basement, its utilization as a recreation room or for some other purpose should be made. Space is too valuable to be wasted. Modern heating equipment may be considered a decorative piece of furniture, and its appearance would prove no detriment in the room. With little effort and at small expense the recreation room may be partitioned and attractively furnished. Many modern plans call for an extra room in the basement.

The federal housing administration program provides for the financing of homes.

FHA IS PERMANENT

The national housing act does not expire next April or next July as some seem to think. The act is permanent legislation, and the federal housing administration is a permanent governmental agency. The modernization credit plan expires April 1, 1937. Treasury guarantees of housing administration insurance fund debentures continues until July 1939, but insurance of home mortgages continues with a fund that now totals $15,000,000. This fund is increasing at the rate of $500,000 each month.

LEAKY ROOF SPOILS PLASTER AND PAINT

The roof, being the most exposed part of a building, should receive close scrutiny. Leaks menace plaster and paint in rooms and walls below. Water soaked ceilings become dangerous to occupants and may cause serious damage to the property. Assurance of a water-tight roof is necessary to the owner of a new or modernized home.

MEMORIAL DAY TO BE OBSERVED

Elaborate Services Planned By Ouachita Parish Veterans Council

Elaborate services are being planned here to commemorate Memorial day, May 30, and all veterans' organizations, service clubs, churches and lodges will be asked to have representatives at the Riverside cemetery on that day to honor the memory of veterans of the United States who have died.

Ted Madsen, commander of the Ouachita parish veterans' council, announced Saturday that the council will have charge of the Memorial day program. Commander Madsen urged all veterans' organizations and auxiliaries, as well as all other civic organizations in the parish, to be well represented at the services on that day.

A prominent citizen of Ouachita parish will be asked to deliver the principal address for the occasion and efforts will be made to have the several bands and bugle corps in the Twin Cities to participate in the program.

Tentative plans call for the forming of a parade of veterans at the corner of Thomas and South Grand streets to march to the Riverside cemetery, where the services will be held at the graves of veterans buried there. A wooden stand will be erected and places reserved for city officials and the heads of veterans' organizations and their auxiliaries and other civic organizations.

The parish veterans' council represents more than 2,000 veterans, including members of the Leonidas Barkdull Faulk post of the American Legion, Burnett-Downs post of the legion of West Monroe; Walter L. Smith post of the legion, of Sterlington; Rodney J. Hobbs post of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, Disabled American Veterans' post, Thompson Wood Lee camp of United Spanish War veterans.

TRINITY LUTHERAN CHURCH
Harrison and D'Arbonne Streets
Sherrouse Addition
Vernon C. Grosse, Pastor

Sunday school and Bible class at 9:45 a.m. Church services at 10:45 a.m. In the portion of Holy Scriptures suggested for reading at this time, namely, the Epistle of James 1.22-27, we find that it urges us to have the proper attitude towards the Word. What shall we do with the Word of God? Of course, it is our first and primary duty to hear it. But let us not be hearers only; that is to say, let us not be forgetful hearers. Let us be doers! When are we doers? There is one thing that the Word of God demands of all hearers: Repent and believe. True religion is, first of all, a life in daily repentance and faith. This is followed by a life well-pleasing to God. You are invited to the preaching and teaching of His Word.

Among the citations which comprise the lesson-sermon is the following from the Bible: "And Jesus called a little child unto Him, and set him in the midst of them, and said, Verily I say unto you, Except ye be converted, and become as little children, ye shall not enter into the kingdom of heaven." (Matt. 18). The lesson-sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "Sin makes its own hell, and goodness its own heaven." (p. 196).

FIRST PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH
Grammont at Catalpa
Ernest Holloway, Pastor

"Avoiding a Breakdown" and "The Divine Presence" are the subjects of our messages. Jesus has given a program, which if followed will keep men whole, strong and sound. He knew humanity's needs. Can we think of any need greater than poise, self-control and perspective? He is the world's teacher. If men are wise they will listen to what he offers. Every day we hear and learn about breakdowns. If Jesus only had the ear of people conditions would be far different. And as folk travel the way of life they have a Companion, Whose love is eternal, Whose knowledge beggars description and Whose power to bless is effective. Worship is indispensable to a well rounded life. What irreparable damage is done when His Temple is neglected! "Come, let us worship and bow down, let us kneel before the Lord our maker: for He is our God and we are the people of His Pasture." God expects His people to adore and honor Him in the sanctuary of their choice. Does He not have a right to ask us to worship Him in beauty of holiness? Is He not entitled to our awe, admiration, adoration, confession and entreaty? Every phase of our worship program is arranged in the interest of the worshipper's spiritual understanding, growth and joy. A hearty welcome awaits you!

A good congregation is expected at this service. The Woman's Missionary society will meet at the church Tuesday, 2:30 p.m., for a business meeting. Mr. R. L. Hales led the prayer meeting last Wednesday evening, and a meeting of the church board of Christian education was held immediately following.

GRACE CHURCH
Fourth And Glenmar Streets
Edward Farren Hayward, Rector

"Kalendar" for the week: Sunday, the ifth after Easter, commonly called Rogation Sunday, services for the day are the Holy Eucharist 7:30 a.m., church school 9:30 a.m., choral celebration of the Eucharist and sermon 11 a.m., evensong and sermon at Saint David's, Rayville, 4:30 p.m.; Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday are Rogation days, days of solemn supplication, the Holy Eucharist to be celebrated daily at 9 a.m., evensong and supplications at 4:30 p.m.; Thursday is the Feast of the Ascension of our Lord, commonly called Holy Thursday, the Holy Eucharist to be celebrated 7 a.m., and 9 a.m., Evensong to be said at 4:30 p.m. Holy Thursday is a holy day of obligation. When a friend departs to visit a glorious city, and the court of a great king, we have messages to send by him. When we have a friend at court to present our petitions, we feel emboldened to make known our requests. These two ideas are made prominent today (Sunday). Jesus is our Intercessor and Advocate with the Father; hence prayer and its nature, as presented through Christ's merits and intercession, are the subjects of this day's services, in view of the "going up on high" of our Great High Priest. Ascension Day (Thursday) is one of the great festivals of the church year. The story of the Ascension of our Lord is told in the Epistle for the day, by Saint Luke, the writer of the book of the Acts, and in the Gospel of Saint Mark. At the Eucharist, when the words: "He was parted from them and carried up into Heaven," are read, the Paschal Candle is extinguished. The church is opened daily. Come in, rest, pray, give thanks, meditate.

FIRST BAPTIST CHURCH
Grammont and St. John Streets
L. T. Hastings, Pastor
D. C. Black, Educational Director

The pastor and Mrs. Hastings have returned from Hodge where he conducted a series of evangelistic services during the past ten days in the Baptist church, of which Rev. Joe Hinkie is pastor. Brother Hastings will tell us of the response received and interest shown, Sunday morning, for which time he has chosen for his sermon topic, "Heaven." Appropriate music has been arranged by Mr. Black. The meeting hour for B. T. U. has been changed to 6:25 and the hour for the evening church service to 7:45. We are praying for capacity crowds at all services Sunday. Visitors are cordially invited.

FIRST CHRISTIAN CHURCH
Oak and St. John Streets
Crayton S. Brooks, Pastor

The Roll Call continues. Come in and register. Sunday school at 9:45. Mrs. Moss and her department win the first silver star and the party. They may win a gold star Sunday. Who will be the next? Each class should soon double its attendance. Sermon at 10:50, "Where There Is No Vision My People Perish." Communion. Out at noon. Sermon at 7:30, "What Is the Most Horrible of Sins?" If you could remove one sin from the world and only one, what would it be? What sin breaks more hearts and causes more sadness than any other? Beautiful gift to the one who is the first to turn in the correct answer. Make a superb effort to get all the members of both C. E. societies out at 6:30. The pastor will lead the meeting on Wednesday evening and the topic will be "Dr. Luke, the Physician, Apostle and Historian." The state convention will meet at Mansfield on May 12 and 13.

FIRST BAPTIST CHURCH, WEST MONROE
E. E. Huntsberry, Pastor
O. J. Thompson, Educational Director

Sunday school 9:45 a.m.; morning service 10:50 a.m., preaching by the pastor on the theme, "I Will Build My Church." B. T. U. and Brotherhood, 6:45 p.m.; evensong service, 7:45 p.m., when the pastor will preach on "As the Thief Saw Jesus."

TO VISIT MONROE

Dr. H. W. Stopher, of the Louisiana State university music department, is planning to visit Monroe Friday and Saturday at the time the state band contests are held. TARZAN BALKED

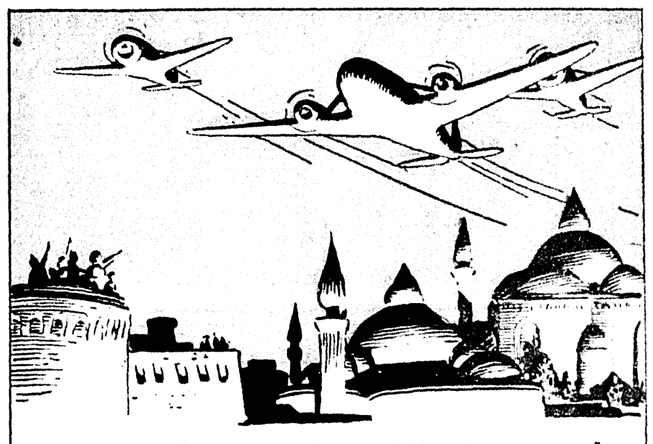
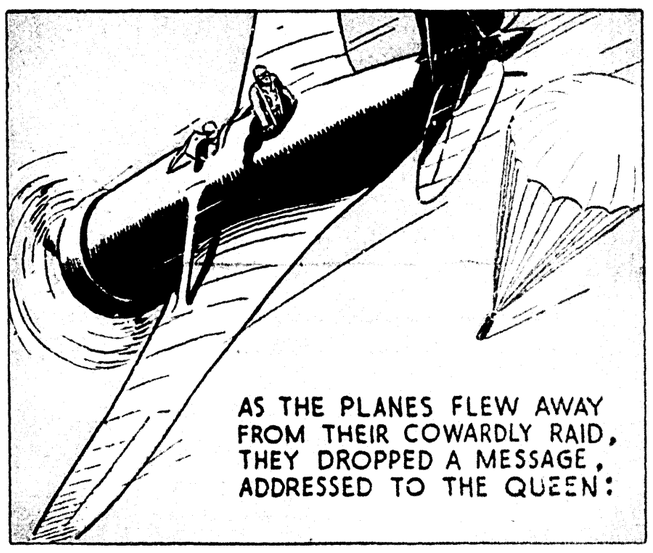
FOR LONG HOURS TARZAN OBSERVED FLINT'S ARMY; THEN, WITH HIS PRISONER, HE STARTED BACK TO THE GOLDEN CITY.



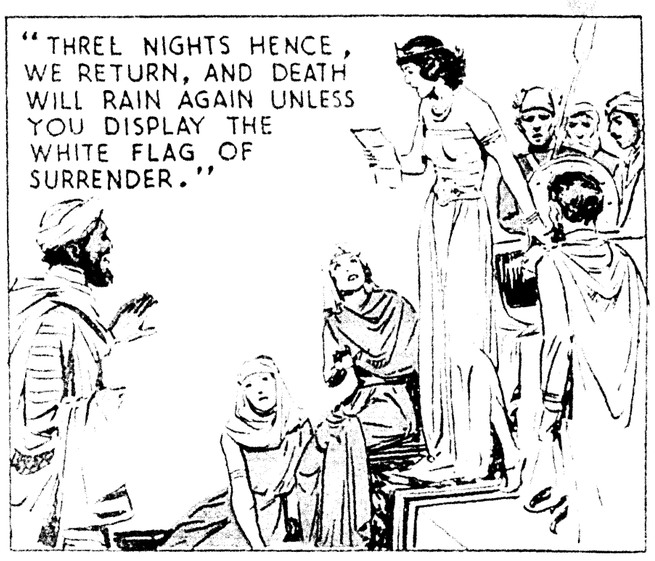
MEANWHILE, WHEN DARKNESS FELL, FLINT'S PLANES ROARED OMINOUSLY OVER THE CITY TO FILL THE NIGHT WITH TERROR.

GIANT BOMBS, LOADED WITH POISON GAS, SCREAMED DOWN AND BURST IN THE CROWDED STREETS.

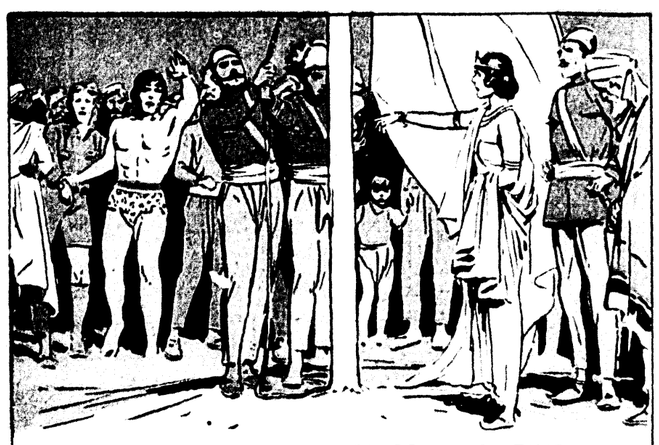
SCORES OF MEN AND WOMEN AND TINY CHILDREN CLUTCHED AT BURNING THROATS, AND COLLAPSED IN AGONY.



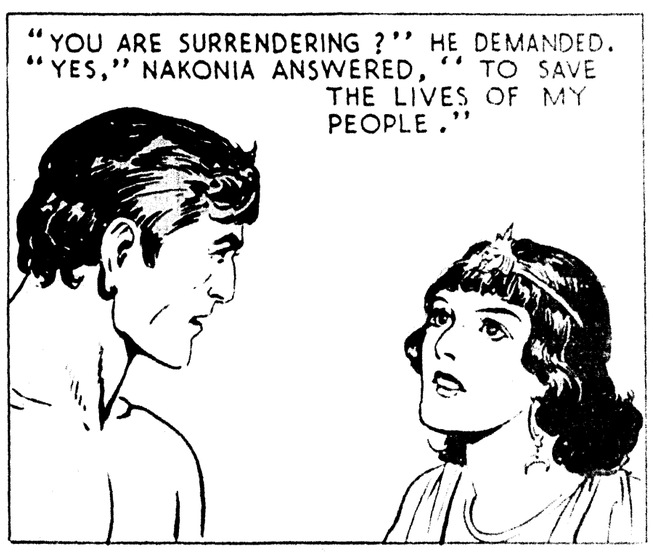
AS THE PLANES FLEW AWAY FROM THEIR COWARDLY RAID, THEY DROPPED A MESSAGE, ADDRESSED TO THE QUEEN:



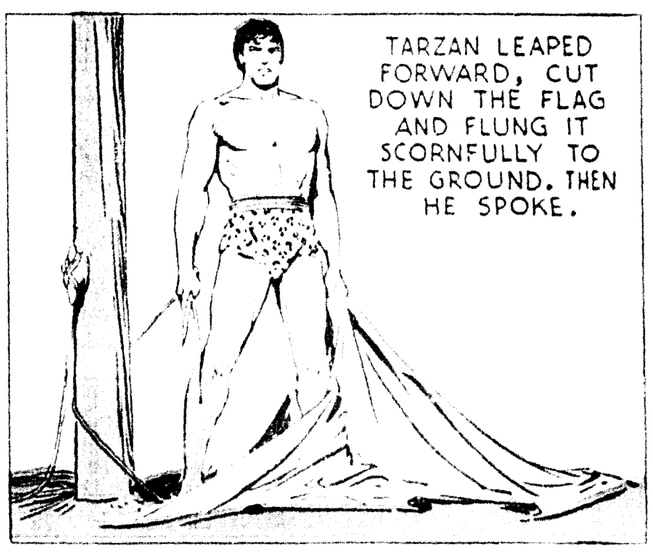
"THREE NIGHTS HENCE, WE RETURN, AND DEATH WILL RAIN AGAIN UNLESS YOU DISPLAY THE WHITE FLAG OF SURRENDER."



NEXT DAY TARZAN ARRIVED, TO FIND THE QUEEN ORDERING THE SHAMEFUL INSIGNIA HOISTED IN THE PLAZA.



"YOU ARE SURRENDERING?" HE DEMANDED.
"YES," NAKONIA ANSWERED, "TO SAVE THE LIVES OF MY PEOPLE."



TARZAN LEAPED FORWARD, CUT DOWN THE FLAG AND FLUNG IT SCORNFULLY TO THE GROUND. THEN HE SPOKE.

"YOU NAMED ME CHIEF OF YOUR MAJESTY'S ARMED FORCES. THE WAR CHIEF OF TAANOR REFUSES TO SURRENDER!"

NAKONIA SECRETLY LOVED TARZAN, BUT SHE BELIEVED IT A DUTY TO HER PEOPLE TO STIFLE FUTILE RESISTANCE TO FLINT. "YOU ARE NO LONGER MY WAR CHIEF," SHE SAID SLOWLY; "YOU ARE UNDER ARREST. GUARDSMEN, SEIZE HIM!"

BUT HOW DID YOU KNOCK HIM OUT, MADELINE? AND WHY?

WELL, IF YOU GIRLS HADN'T BEEN IN SUCH A HURRY, I WOULDN'T HAVE HAD TO.

WHAT DO YOU MEAN?

YOU SEE, AFTER I UNLOCKED THE WINDOW OF THE SHOP AND CAME OUT IN THE HALL - WE SAID GOOD NIGHT TO DEWEY, THE WATCHMAN, AND WENT OUT TO THE SIDEWALK.

BUT INSTEAD OF WAITING TEN MINUTES, UNTIL WE HAD GONE, YOU TWO DASHED TO THE SHOP'S REAR WINDOW TOO SOON AND HE SAW YOU AS WE PASSED THE ALLEY.

WELL, IT WAS DARK - I COULDN'T SEE MY WATCH.

I REALIZE NOW THAT HE HAD BEEN SUSPICIOUS ALL EVENING - SO, WHEN HE STEPPED IN FRONT OF ME TO LOOK DOWN THE ALLEY, I PULLED MY REVOLVER FROM MY PURSE AND PLANTED THE BUTT OF IT ON HIS HEAD.

THERE'S ONLY ONE THING TO DO.

WHAT'S THAT, MARGE?

WE'VE GOT TO KEEP HIM HERE TILL WE'VE FENCED ALL OF THE PERFUME - THEN, WE'LL TAKE THE DOUGH AND SKIP TOWN.

DON'T TAKE YOUR EYES OFF HIM FOR ONE MINUTE - WHILE WE GO SEE THE MADAME.

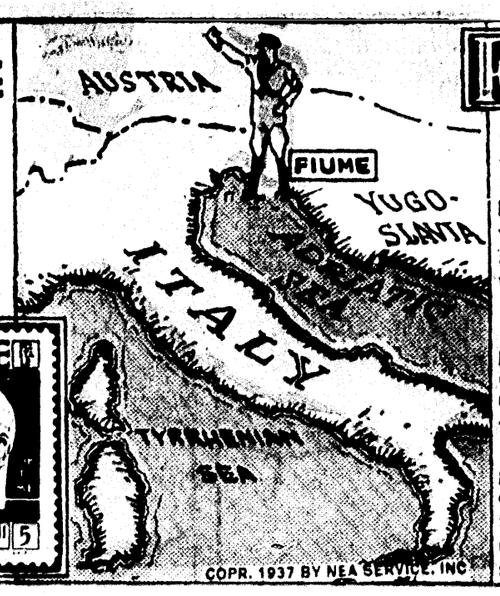
REVOLT OF THE FLYING POET

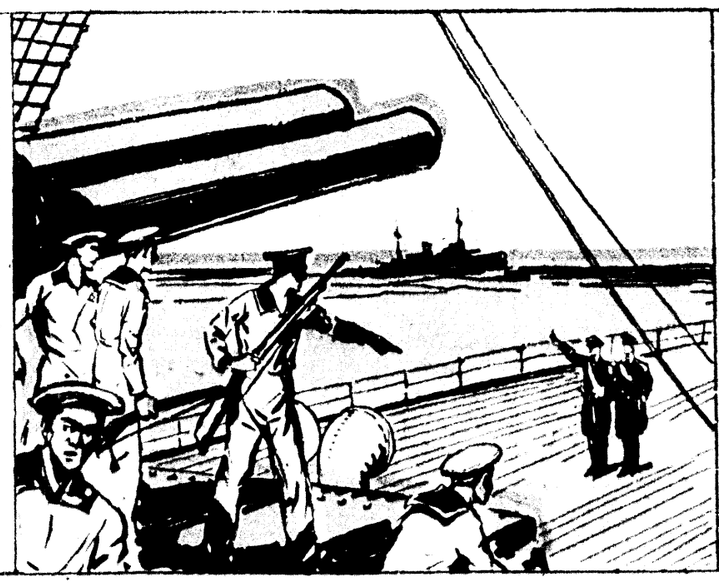
5-2



COPR. 1937 BY NEA SERVICE, INC.

FIUME, small, almost somnolent port on the Adriatic, had been wrested from Hungary after the World War and assigned to Yugo-Slavia by the secret Treaty of London, signed by Italy in 1915. But Italians had seeped into the city until they became a heavy majority, and they soon raised their voices for Italian recognition.

Diplomats of Italy and Europe failed to heed this cry, but a great poet arose and put their demands into action. He was Gabriele d'Annunzio, who sang the glories of Italy in verse, story and drama, and who distinguished himself as an aviator during the World War. He was 55 now, but his fiery spirit had not waned. He prepared to seize Fiume, treaty or no treaty.



In September, 1919, D'Annunzio led his "army" into the city. Sailors mutinied and turned over their ships to the poet. Fiume became the new state of "Carnaro," D'Annunzio its dictator.

Italian diplomats were embarrassed. They dared not question the patriotism of the rebel poet, yet they had to enforce their international promise. For a year, they crossed and recrossed the Adriatic, seeking D'Annunzio's retirement from Fiume. The poet stood adamant. At last, an Italian fleet blockaded the port, troops were landed and Italian fought Italian. D'Annunzio was wounded, and his men were routed.

During its short "independence," Fiume issued a stamp honoring its "liberator."
